Man GLG Alpha Select Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

While inflation and central bank policy continue to make the headlines, equity markets have been unexpectedly resilient despite prevailing nervousness about a policy-led downturn. The S&P was up 8.3% and the NASDAQ was up a further 15%, completing its best first-half return this century. The FTSE 100 lagged due to its lower weighting to technology and the headwind from Sterling, which appreciated a further 3%. There has also been a general apathy towards UK stocks given ongoing economic issues, as inflation has shown no signs of slowing unlike elsewhere in the world.

Performance review

Against this backdrop, the Fund delivered positive performance<sup>1</sup> for the period under review. 3i, Whitbread and CRH were the main drivers of performance, while an Aerospace & Defence company, a Business Services company and Segro were the main detractors.

Trading at Whitbread remained strong in the UK, as recovering demand and the accelerated exodus of industry capacity drove strong RevPAR growth. Whitbread's ability to invest in its estate throughout the downturn is resulting in significant market outperformance, driving even greater positive earnings revisions. CRH also performed strongly, due to the combination of positive earnings revisions, significant buybacks, and remaining at a meaningful discount to US peers, which have also performed well. We expect the valuation discount to peers to continue to close as the company moves its primary listing to the US. However, in the short-term infrastructure investment and fiscal stimulus are now starting to be seen in construction data.

Although the demand environment for Segro remains robust, which is driving attractive rental growth, elevated discount rates have continued to pressure the shares, despite evidence that asset values have started to stabilise. Given the recent move in gilt yields, we would not be surprised to see some further pressure on capitalisation rates in logistics assets. However, the shares already reflect this, and the strength of balance sheet means the shares offer compelling value in our view.

The Fund's gross exposure finished the period at 188%. This reflects the rich opportunity set that remains present in the current environment and that can be managed for tail events through deploying options at the single stock level, given there are likely to be periods of elevated market volatility. The volatility allowed the Fund to add to positions in UK banks where we expect distribution yields over the next 12 months to be over 15% now and options meant that the losses, as sentiment towards the UK deteriorated, were limited. However, we remain cautious regarding the outlook for the UK economy given the inflationary, structural, and political headwinds that it faces, and so took some profits in Whitbread after strong performance and added to shorts in housebuilders.

Future outlook

It is frustrating that the UK has once again found itself in a complex political and economic situation, much of its own making. However, we have seen the opportunities these periods present before and remain excited by the opportunity set. The further development of our risk management tools, as a result of the volatility at the end of last year, is already benefitting the investment process. We believe it is enhancing both risk and return. This should allow the Fund to continue to navigate periods of volatility and ensure that it is well placed to take advantage of the opportunities post any dislocation.

The structural tailwinds from sell side research shrinkage and the move to passive investment strategies remain. Cyclically, the global aversion to UK equities, the operational divergence between companies driven by technological and industrial developments, a more normalised cost of capital, and the reverberations running through the global economy because of the pandemic continue. This, therefore, presents a highly compelling opportunity set for us to contemplate and for the Fund to capture.

Man GLG European Equity Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

The first half of 2023 was an extraordinary period for equity markets. The Nasdaq had the best first 6 months of the year on record, rallying 39%, while the Euro STOXX 50 had its best first half since 1998 with a 16% return. The year started on a strong note as European and US economies avoided a recession and China's re-opening helped soothe fears about the global economy. Markets performed well in Q1 despite the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank and Credit Suisse in March, sticky inflation in developed economies and a red-hot labour market in the US. Amid this worrying macro data, however, Q1 corporate earnings in the US and Europe delivered robust beats vs expectations, particularly in cyclical sectors, and particularly on margins. Equity markets continued to gain in Q2, driven higher by the prospect of a generative AI-led productivity revolution or perhaps the extraordinary resilience of the US economy in the face of continued sticky inflation and pledges from the US Federal Reserve to keep tightening.

Performance review

Man GLG European Equity Alternative (the 'Fund') ended the first half of the year (net of fees)<sup>2</sup>.

In risk attribution terms, idiosyncratic risk returns were positive, gross of fees in the first half, while style risk detracted. Among the other risk factors, market risk and industry risk also contributed positively, while country risk detracted from returns. The losses in style risk primarily occurred in January and early February following the weak performance in the momentum factor.

In terms of the underlying strategies, we look at performance in strategy buckets: fundamental long-short; liquidity & arbitrage, and; systematic (spanning fully and semi-systematic strategies). Fundamental long-short strategies were the biggest contributors year to date with gains primarily concentrated in Alpha Novus, Long Term Growth, and European Opportunities strategies. Liquidity and arbitrage strategies were modestly positive in the first half of the year. Our Risk Arbitrage strategy saw losses principally driven by the FTC's challenge to Amgen's acquisition of Horizon Therapeutics in May, and Dechra Pharma declining on the risk that poor operating results sees a reduced bid from potential acquirer EQT. These losses in the liquidity and arbitrage strategies offset by gains in our ECM strategies which benefitted from deal volumes continuing to thaw. Systematic strategies ended the first half in negative territory mainly due to the Quant and Defensive Alpha strategies. Both strategies have been scaled in size.

Future outlook

The first half of the year ended with gross coming in at about 420% with an expected barra volatility of 4.5%. Hedging at the Fund level is minimal, with underlying risks well diversified, and portfolio construction tight, with idiosyncratic risk at c. 70%.

We thank our investors for their continued support to date and in the future.

Man AHL Multi Strategy Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

After a year of unprecedented monetary tightening coupled with historic selloffs in both bonds and equities, 2023 started on a relatively positive note. The sharp fall in natural gas prices, resilient sentiment indicators and the awakening of China from its Covid induced slumber, all pointed to the possibility that inflation may have seen its peak and a global recession was to be averted. The hubris of January evaporated in February as several US data releases showed that inflation was still running hot and was in danger of becoming entrenched, concerns of a 'no landing' scenario increased investor bets that rates would continue to rise. Trends reversed sharply mid-March in the wake of the mini banking crisis that ensnared Silicon Valley Bank, First Republic, Signature and Credit Suisse among others. Haven assets, in particular government bonds rallied sharply, with the 2-year US treasury yields posting the largest one-day decline since 1987, as bond volatility, measured by the MOVE Index, spiked to a 14 year high. The second quarter then started on a cautious note as markets assessed the likelihood of broader financial contagion following March's mini banking crisis alongside the impending US debt-ceiling deadline. Further turmoil failed to materialise, however, and volatility subsided with the VIX index ending the quarter at its lowest level since the start of the pandemic. In this environment, bonds were mixed, but stocks generally rose, led by the rally in AI.

Performance review

Against this backdrop, Man AHL Multi Strategy Alternative delivered a positive return<sup>1</sup> with profits driven by yield capture, while momentum and core alpha detracted.

Yield capture was the top performing style over the 6-month period, with the subdued risk environment in equities in 2023 leading to good opportunities for short risk positions, with option positions in the S&P500 and Korean Kospi indices among the top performers. Bond trading was less fruitful, with delta hedged options positions in US treasuries losing out. Carry also added, with currencies the main contributor driven by directional models.

Momentum models generated losses, with fixed income trading the main detractor amid the Silicon Valley Bank run where yields plunged, impacting short positions that were generally held across the board. Among the worst impacted over the 6 month period were Italian and Australian bonds. Elsewhere, cash equity trading was a drag with price reversals hitting US technology and pharmaceutical stocks leading to mixed positioning and negative performance. On the positive side, trends were found in currency markets, with the Mexican peso, Japanese yen, and UK sterling all traded against the US dollar profiting over the period.

Core alpha detracted over the period, with fundamental factors losing out. Losses were predominately in fixed income and equity trading as macro models based on seasonal and fundamental patterns were wrongfooted. Worst impacted were positions in Australian bonds, UK gilts and the MSCI emerging markets index.

Man AHL TargetRisk – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

The sharp fall in natural gas prices, resilient sentiment indicators and the awakening of China from its Covid induced slumber, all pointed to the possibility that inflation may have seen its peak and a global recession was to be averted. Further turmoil failed to materialise, however, and volatility subsided with the VIX index ending the quarter at its lowest level since the start of the pandemic. In this environment, bonds were mixed, but stocks generally rose, led by the rally in AI.

Performance review

Against this backdrop AHL TargetRisk returned positive performance<sup>1</sup> with stock positions being the top performing asset class. Performance across asset classes was mixed, with equities, bonds and credit contributing positively, while commodities detracted.

Despite the market turmoil in March, stock positions were the top performing asset class over the 6-month period. Gains were made from longs in Japanese equity indices, which continued to outperform amid mounting pressure on constituent firms to focus more on shareholder interests. This resulted in the Nikkei having its second-best quarterly performance of the last decade in Q2 2023. After a challenging year in 2022, tech stocks staged a renaissance with the NASDAQ 100 finishing H1 2023 up over 30% having lost 33% in 2022. Excitement around the advent of AI in Q2 2023 propelled tech stocks higher which benefitted the Fund's long positions in both the S&P500 and NASDAQ 100 indices.

Inflation assets struggled, although positive overall. Commodities weighed on performance, with losses across energies and metals, notably oil and copper. Brent crude oil posted its longest run of quarterly losses in data going back more than three decades, ending the period on its fourth consecutive quarter of decline, amid robust supplies and continuing concerns over demand. Inflation linked bonds moderated losses to an extent.

Bond positions were slightly accretive over the 6-month period. In Q1 2023 this was predominantly led by longer dated US treasuries, which experienced the best quarter since the pandemic turmoil of Q1 2020. Performance was flat nearer the front end of the curve, as 2-year US treasuries yields gave up February's gains during the March tumult to finish the quarter broadly in line with the level at the start of the year. Credit followed a similar story, with European CDS indices starting the year positively in line with equities. In Q2 bond positions weighed on performance as US positions detracted across maturities. Gilts added to losses as prices fell to their lowest level since the UK LDI crisis, after several inflation releases surprised on the upside, leaving the UK with the highest CPI rate in the G7. Australian positions fared little better as central banks continued the campaign to tame inflation. Japanese bonds provided some relief as the Bank of Japan gave no indication of a tightening in policy.

Exposure continued to increase over the 6-month period. The bond momentum de-gear signal deactivated during March, having initialised earlier in the year. In the second quarter the correlation and the volatility overlays remained inactive across all asset classes. The momentum overlay was active in commodities increasing and decreasing its de-gear signal as the second quarter progressed. Coming into June the momentum overlay activated in both bonds and equities; however, the de-gear signal of the latter was reduced to an immaterial level by the period end.

Man GLG European Mid-Cap Equity Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

European equities had a strong first half of 2023 as the energy crisis abated courtesy of a mild winter and sufficient gas inventories. This was followed by turmoil in the banking sector with the failures of Signature and Silicon Valley Bank in the US and the rescue of Credit Suisse by UBS in Europe in March. Markets initially responded negatively to the volatility, but ultimately gained in the first quarter with the banking sector problems seen as largely contained. Markets continued to advance in the second quarter, driven higher by Q1 earnings strength and the enthusiasm over artificial intelligence and its potential impact on productivity.

Performance review

The Man GLG European Mid-Cap Equity Alternative (the 'Fund') was up in performance<sup>1</sup> (net of fees) in the first half of the year.

The top three contributors to returns during this period were long positions in and German-listed eyeglasses retailer Fielmann, French-listed laundry company Elis and French-listed R&D outsourcing company Alten. Fielmann enjoyed strong performance following the release of Q1 results in April and the announcement of a new cost saving plan. The Fund had been short Fielmann for the past eight years as growth in the core German market slowed, prompting investments in e-commerce and international expansion. These investments alongside a weak market in 2022 caused margins to halve versus 2015 levels, causing the shares to significantly underperform. Despite a poor headline 4Q22 earnings release in February due to asset write downs, the team noticed a significantly improved revenue dynamic as the market quickly recovered, leading them to flip the position from short to long as, in their view, earnings expectations were far too cautious. The 1Q23 results in April confirmed the team's investment thesis and saw strong revenue and gain-related growth, leading to the first broker earnings estimate upgrades in years and strong share price outperformance. Elis had a strong first half of the year, boosted initially by strong 4Q results followed by strong 1Q results and positive commentary at June conferences. Alten also saw a strong run following 4Q results coming in ahead of expectations in January followed by continued strong growth momentum at 1Q results in April.

The primary detractor to performance in the first half of 2023 was a short position in UK-listed animal healthcare company, which was bid for by private equity firm EQT at a nearly 50% premium. A long position in UK-listed residential real estate company Grainger detracted as it underperformed the market alongside the real estate sector in Q1 due to financing concerns for the sector following the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank in the US and again in June as UK interest rate expectations rose following a higher-than-expected inflation print and a surprise 50 basis point rate increase from the Bank of England. A short position in German-listed healthcare packaging company also detracted after the shares outperformed early in the year following strong 4Q results (aided by aggressive accounting, in the team's view) and on optimism for accelerated market growth due the early success of GLP-1 weight loss drugs produced by Eli Lilly and Novo Nordisk. The team closed the position in March due to the upside risk from the GLP-1 opportunity.

Future outlook

The team remain cautious on the macro backdrop as they continue to see slowing industrial end markets and an increased pace of destocking and worsening margin mix. However, the team sees varied trends across both consumer and industrial end markets with many idiosyncratic sub-industry cycles leading to opportunities. The Fund's gross exposure at the end of the first half was around 120% after lower levels in earlier in the year, reflecting the team's confidence into the 2Q earnings season, which kicks off at the end of July. The net exposure remained market neutral throughout the first half of the year.

Man GLG Global Emerging Markets Debt Total Return – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

After a challenging period, both Emerging Markets sovereign and quasi-sovereign hard currency (HC) debt and sovereign local currency Debt (LC) rebounded in 2023H1.<sup>1</sup> The narrative around the global monetary cycle and, in particular, the Fed's hiking cycle, set the underlying tone for markets in 2023H1. January, March, and June were the strongest months, while February (due to expected Fed hikes) and May (following growth concerns originated in China and spreading to Europe, and US debt ceiling uncertainty) had negative returns. Most EM central banks continued to hike throughout the semester, although some have paused as disinflation started to take hold. EM Bond funds experienced outflows in 2023H1, with outflows from HC bond funds surpassing the inflows into LC bond funds.<sup>2</sup>

In HC, positive performance was driven by a combination of EM sovereign spread compression and HC yield reduction.

In LC, price return led performance, as risk and inflation premium were priced out of local duration markets, while interest carry and FX gains followed, with EM currencies benefiting from a stronger Euro. The average EM local yield decreased by more than core DM yields, thus the spread between GBI-EM yields and UST 5-year yields decreased.

Performance review

In 2023H1, the Fund's net return was positive. The main reason for the performance of the Fund was its defensive positioning with the short credit spread exposure and, to lesser extent, the EM FX exposures, detracting from performance. These were partially offset by the positive return contribution from some long and short exposure in South Africa. The largest individual drags to performance were the short credit spread exposures to Brazil, CDX-EM and Colombia, as well as the shorts to MXN and BRL.

Future outlook

In our view, the EM faces several headwinds that are not reflected in expensive valuations and which impact may worsen due to stretched market positioning.

Firstly, global liquidity is expected to decrease sharply over the next six months due to additional debt issuance required to rebuild the US Treasury's General Account and ongoing quantitative tightening in the US and Eurozone. In our view, the rally in EM currencies and credit from late October 2022 until now has been due to the depletion of the US Treasury General account (TGA) and a USD500 billion liquidity injection from the Bank of Japan in late 2022 and early 2023. The debt ceiling limit and TGA rollover dynamics also impacted the market in 2017/2018, and 2021/2022. However, we expect the TGA rebuild to have a more significant negative impact this time around, as the Fed and ECB are performing quantitative tightening instead of quantitative easing.

Secondly, the DM hiking cycle is still ongoing due to a complex inflation outlook, particularly in the US where the near-term data is unclear and the likelihood of a recession or renewed Fed hiking cycle remains high. Additionally, there are region-specific headwinds, including EM Asia's exposure to China's economic double dip and the global manufacturing contraction, Latin America's and South Africa's struggle with lower commodity prices, and Eastern Europe's substantial drawback from its proximity to the Russia-Ukraine war.

In HC, the IG sector spread is at historical tight and appears expensive to US IG and current monetary conditions and economic activity. The gap between IG and HY segments is close to historical highs. However, while EM HY spreads have improved, credit differentiation in this segment given the distressed credit profile of several of its issuers.

Regarding EM FX, while carry has been a significant driver of returns in 2023H1, weaker EU and Chinese activity data has left commodity-dependent EM currencies more vulnerable. In relation to local rates, the rate at which core inflation eases could be slower than anticipated, and a more hawkish outlook for the Fed's policy trajectory may lead EM central banks to adopt a more cautious approach in the next few quarters.

Man GLG Innovation Equity Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

Equity markets have been strong in the first half of 2023, regaining some of the lost ground in 2022. The market has been helped by signs that the economy has generally held up well despite the interest rate hikes by the Fed. At the same time, whilst inflation is well above the Fed's long term target, it is significantly below the 2022 peak with further declines likely. The resiliency of the economy has been all the more impressive given the regional banking crisis late in the first quarter. Whilst this led to fears of a recession at the time, this has since subsided with high yield credit spreads making new post Covid lows and equity volatility coming in significantly. Although the Fed remains data dependent, it does seem likely that they are close to the end of their tightening cycle. Thus far, there has not been a significant impact on unemployment although we are mindful that monetary policy does work with long and variable lags so it is too early to say decisively that the US has avoided a recession in the next 12 to 18 months.

Performance review

The Man GLG Innovation Equity Alternative Fund (the 'Fund') ended the first half of the year positively, net of fees<sup>1</sup>.

At the stock level, the Fund's top contributor in the first half of the year was a long position in GFL Environmental, the waste services provider. GFL Environmental had a very strong start to the year as the company looked to sell assets in order to de-lever the balance sheet. They did this very successfully and got prices for the assets that were above expectations. The Fund was also positively impacted by its bullish stance on artificial intelligence, mainly represented in long positions in Nvidia and Amazon. In May, Nvidia reported earnings and gave Q2 revenue guidance of well above consensus expectations mainly driven by companies growing their artificial intelligence related capex, leading to strong outperformance. Amazon also enjoyed strong performance in May partly attributable to the market seeing public cloud vendors as major beneficiary of artificial intelligence.

The Fund's losses in the first half were primarily concentrated in the short book, with consumer cyclical shorts driving the majority of the negative alpha. Despite having deteriorating fundamentals, these names enjoyed a strong bounce with the soft landing market view in January. Other detractors included short positions in low quality retail and unprofitable technology names that benefitted from the market rotation in February.

Future outlook

The investment team continues to believe there is uncertainty on the path of the US economy, but are more convinced that inflation is slowing. It is their view that over the medium term fundamentals will drive stock prices and the portfolio continues to have diversified exposure on the long and short side. Additions to the portfolio include homebuilder DR Horton to the long book due to strong trends in the US homebuilding industry. Consumer shorts have been also reduced due to the fact that a soft landing could drive further upside in the sector.

Man Alternative Style Risk Premia – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

The first quarter of 2023 began with stock markets having a strong start to the year. Investors took signs of easing inflation as a signal that central banks could slow and eventually stop their pace of rate hikes. Equity markets, posted near or record returns for January as the MSCI World returned 7.0% and the S&P 500 over 6.0% as technology and small caps led the way. February was a risk-off month following January's rally. Strong US job numbers at the start of the month and the significant upside surprise on the US inflation data at the end of the month spooked markets into believing that inflation was not tamed after all, and odds that central banks will achieve the perfect landing faded. Mixed markets in March reflected elevated concerns within the financial sector and broader contagion risks, following the collapse of US regional banks Silicon Valley Bank and Signature Bank as a loss in depositor confidence exposed overwhelming asset losses, and in Europe, Credit Suisse when its largest shareholder refused to provide additional equity capital.

The second quarter started with relative calmness, heavily contrasting with March's sentiment that elevated concerns within the financial sector and broader contagion risks might lead to the next Global Financial Crisis. Under the surface most equities were positive, and commodity prices saw large moves while implied volatility drifted lower. In May, markets responded to an assortment of news, primarily surrounding US Debt Ceiling jitters and the strength of the technology sector due to growing enthusiasm in artificial intelligence. The US debt ceiling extension was approved by both chambers of Congress for the next two years following a last-minute deal, and the expectation of cuts to the US Federal Reserve policy rate that came after the regional banking stress in March evaporated. Futures markets are now pricing another hike this summer amidst persistent core inflation. June was an exceptional month for global equities, with Developed Market Equities up, capping an extraordinary first half of 2023 for risk markets. Central banks took a more hawkish tone; the European Central Bank hiked rates by 25bp after a similar hike in May, and although the US Federal Reserve paused in June, expectations of future rate hikes increased.

Performance review

The portfolio started the year with a negative return, against a backdrop where there was outperformance of low quality, high beta names within equities in January and a banking crisis later in the quarter. Performance was positive in the Equity strategies; however the macro strategies had a poor quarter. In Equities, the strongest driver was the Equity Liquid strategy, while the Equity Size and Low Beta strategy were small detractors. Within Macro, Momentum was by far the biggest detractor, followed by the Liquid Macro strategy. Both strategies had short bond positions in March and were hit by the extraordinary rally amid the banking concerns. Volatility was the main positive driver within Macro, providing some offset.

The portfolio had a positive second quarter, led by the Macro strategies while the Equity strategies modestly offset. Trend/Momentum was the largest contributor to performance, benefitting from short, fixed income positions as Central banks continued hikes throughout the quarter. Followed by Volatility and Fixed Income which were both additive as well. Within Equities, Equity Market Neutral was modestly up on the quarter however Equities Size and Low Beta offset this with negative performance.

Future outlook

Based on the factors which we have considered above, we do not have cause for concern which would otherwise prevent the fund from operating as a viable economic entity during the ordinary course of business over the next 12 months, following the year-end reporting date.

Man AHL Active Balanced and Man AHL Target Growth Alternative– Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

After a year of unprecedented monetary tightening coupled with historic selloffs in both bonds and equities, 2023 started on a relatively positive note. The sharp fall in natural gas prices, resilient sentiment indicators and the awakening of China from its Covid induced slumber, all pointed to the possibility that inflation may have seen its peak and a global recession was to be averted. The hubris of January evaporated in February as several US data releases showed that inflation was still running hot and was in danger of becoming entrenched, concerns of a 'no landing' scenario increased investor bets that rates would continue to rise. Trends reversed sharply mid-March in the wake of the mini banking crisis that ensnared Silicon Valley Bank, First Republic, Signature and Credit Suisse among others.

Haven assets, in particular government bonds rallied sharply, with the 2-year US treasury yields posting the largest one-day decline since 1987, as bond volatility, measured by the MOVE Index<sup>1</sup>, spiked to a 14 year high. The second quarter then started on a cautious note as markets assessed the likelihood of broader financial contagion following March's mini banking crisis alongside the impending US debt-ceiling deadline. Further turmoil failed to materialise, however, and volatility subsided with the VIX index<sup>2</sup> ending the quarter at its lowest level since the start of the pandemic. In this environment, bonds were mixed, but stocks generally rose, led by the rally in AI.

Performance review - Man AHL Active Balanced

The Fund returned positive performance<sup>3</sup> over the period with gains in both bonds and equities.

Stock positions were the top performing asset class. Gains were made from longs in Japanese equity indices, which outperformed amid mounting pressure on constituent firms to focus more on shareholder interests. This resulted in the Nikkei having its second-best quarterly performance of the last decade in the second quarter. Excitement around the advent of AI propelled tech stocks higher which benefitted the fund's long positions in both the S&P500 and NASDAQ 100 indices. Chinese stocks weighed on performance as markets re-evaluated future growth prospects after the post-Covid recovery fell short of expectations.

Bonds were further accretive despite divergent performance across global bond markets. Italian and Japanese bond positions contributed positively as improving economic fundamentals and a continuation of dovish policy by the Bank of Japan benefitted both positions respectively. US positions detracted across maturities. Gilts added to losses as prices fell to their lowest level since the UK LDI crisis, after several inflation releases surprised on the upside, leaving the UK with the highest CPI rate in the G7.

Performance review - Man AHL Target Growth Alternative

The Fund returned positive performance<sup>4</sup> over the period with gains in bonds and currencies more than offsetting losses in bonds.

Currencies were further accretive. High yields in Mexico have attracted inflows, resulting in demand for the peso and profits for the Fund's long positions against the US dollar. Shorts in the Japanese yen against the British pound and Euro also benefitted as new central bank governor Ueda revealed he was happy with current monetary policy, sending the currency into a tailspin. Losses were experienced in US dollar pairs against Canadian and Australian dollars as the respective banks resumed rate hikes after a fleeting pause.

Bonds detracted on the back of divergent performance across global bond markets. Gilts were the principal detractor as prices fell to their lowest level since the UK LDI crisis in September 2022, after several inflation releases surprised on the upside, leaving the UK with the highest CPI rate in the G7. US positions also detracted across maturities as investors priced in the probability of further rate hikes. Italian and French bond positions proved the exception and helped moderate losses.

Future outlook

Active Balanced's and Target Growth Alternative's portfolio designs are based on years of scientific research, innovation, and experience with active risk management. It can systematically react to changing risk environments as they unfold, reducing risk and exposure in periods of stress. At the same time, its underlying diversified portfolio allows it to participate in different market regimes.

Market summary

Fixed income markets have varied over the last 6 months with the market stress witnessed in 2022 continuing into 2023, as the US 10-year peaked at 4.09% following the US Regional Banking Crisis. However, after a volatile first quarter characterised by stubborn inflation and periods of acute market stress, Q2 2023 saw a return in risk appetite, particularly following the US debt ceiling resolution, allowing both credit spreads and equities to rally. Bond yields on the other hand moved towards the top of recent ranges.

Despite the Fed pausing their rate hiking cycle for the first time since March 2022, other central banks continued to raise rates, including a resumption after a pause from Australia and Canada. In the UK, further inflation surprises to the upside led to a significant adjustment higher in interest rate expectations, and by June end 10-year gilt yields were almost 100 basis points higher than they were at the end of Q1 2023.

The Fund launched in June 2023 and its aim is to provide income and capital growth by investing directly or indirectly in fixed and floating rate securities worldwide. The Fund focuses on securities issued primarily by financial institutions, principally using a bottom-up approach.

The Fund will invest primarily in corporate bonds issued by financial institutions globally (which may be fixed or floating rate). The Portfolio may also invest in other transferable securities, money market instruments, bonds convertible into common stock, mortgage-backed securities and asset backed securities. It is anticipated that investment in CoCo bonds is typically expected to be between 10-30% of the Net Asset Value of the Portfolio and will be subject to a maximum of 50% of the Net Asset Value of the Portfolio.

The Fund is actively managed. The 70% ICE BofAML Global Financial Index (hedged) / 30% ICE BofAML Financials Contingent Capital Index (hedged) (the "Benchmark") will be used for risk management purposes to monitor the global exposure of the Portfolio. The Investment Manager will calculate the global exposure of the Portfolio using the relative Value-at-Risk (VaR) versus the Benchmark. The Portfolio may not hold all or any of the components of the Benchmark and will not select investments by reference to the Benchmark.

Performance review - Man GLG Financial Credit Opportunities (continued)

The Benchmark maintains two components, with the ICE BofA Global Financial Index designed to track the investment grade corporate debt publicly issued financial issuers in the major domestic or eurobond markets. The second component, the ICE BofA Contingent Capital Index tracks the performance of investment grade and below investment grade contingent capital debt issued in the major domestic and eurobond markets.

Future outlook

In many ways our outlook has not changed from prior quarters. The consequence of tighter monetary policy will be slower growth and we still have yet to see a recessionary premium in cyclical parts of the market. Looking forward we expect dispersion to accelerate and create more opportunities for investors. We maintain a strong preference for senior and secured exposures and will be guided by bottom up fundamentals in terms of where value resides. This is pointing us towards senior financials, gaming, consumer staples and special situations in real estate and business services. Stress and distress are likely to accelerate creating new opportunities to provide capital to liquidity constrained companies with good business models at highly attractive terms.

We remain optimistic about the stock picking environment but believe that caution on pure credit beta is warranted. The strategy is currently invested in a number of deep value opportunities with a range of catalysts to drive performance in the future irrespective of market direction.

Man GLG Event Driven Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

The first six months of the year have seen a tech surge driven by AI, a commodity market decline and the worst banking crash since 2008. Linking it all has been the relentless rises in rates, which was exactly what impacted markets in 2022.

Global M&A activity has got off to a slow start during the first half of 2023 with over USD 1.3 trillion of deal volume announced. Despite this fall in activity the last few months have seen M&A levels in line with historical levels. US Annualised merger arbitrage spreads have slowly fallen over the period despite a series of large deal breaks and regulatory issues.

Performance review

The Man GLG Event Driven Alternative returned positive performance<sup>1</sup> over the first 6 months of 2023 in what has been a difficult period for event driven funds especially those with a focus on merger arbitrage with the benchmark index<sup>2</sup> declining over the same period. The key drivers of the period were Chiasma, Sky worth digital and Oak Street while the main detractors were Horizon Therapeutics, Randall and Quilter and Global Cord Blood.

Future outlook

After a difficult first half of the year we believe that deal activity will improve especially in the small and midcap space. Private equity is still holding high levels of dry powder with an estimated USD 2.5 trillion of uncommitted capital. We believe that private equity firms remain under pressure to put capital to work, and with a supportive financing environment this should help to support future deal flow.

Firms are still looking to deliver on their strategic objectives and reshape their businesses to respond to rising uncertainties. An acquisition has historically been one of the fastest ways for a firm to transform its business with the ability to push a firm into a new growing segment, add new capabilities, transition away from a troubled sector or increase its digital transformation/ technological advances.

Regulatory issues have continued to threaten M&A activity and we expect the story to be no different for the rest of 2023. Regulatory pressure does, however, creates spread volatility which also offers investors trading opportunities.

Looking to the second half of 2023, we are significantly more positive about the current merger arbitrage opportunity set. Many deal spreads have either been materially de-risked or have repriced to more attractive levels.

We thank investors for their continued support.

Man AHL TargetRisk Moderate – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

After a year of unprecedented monetary tightening coupled with historic selloffs in both bonds and equities, 2023 started on a relatively positive note. The sharp fall in natural gas prices, resilient sentiment indicators and the awakening of China from its Covid induced slumber, all pointed to the possibility that inflation may have seen its peak and a global recession was to be averted. The hubris of January evaporated in February as several US data releases showed that inflation was still running hot and was in danger of becoming entrenched, concerns of a 'no landing' scenario increased investor bets that rates would continue to rise. Trends reversed sharply mid-March in the wake of the mini banking crisis that ensnared Silicon Valley Bank, First Republic, Signature and Credit Suisse among others. Haven assets, in particular government bonds rallied sharply, with the 2-year US treasury yields posting the largest one-day decline since 1987, as bond volatility, measured by the MOVE Index, spiked to a 14 year high. The second quarter then started on a cautious note as markets assessed the likelihood of broader financial contagion following March's mini banking crisis alongside the impending US debt-ceiling deadline. Further turmoil failed to materialise, however, and volatility subsided with the VIX index ending the quarter at its lowest level since the start of the pandemic. In this environment, bonds were mixed, but stocks generally rose, led by the rally in AI.

Performance review

Against this backdrop AHL TargetRisk Moderate returned positive performance<sup>1</sup> with stock positions being the top performing asset class. Performance across asset classes was mixed, with equities, bonds and credit contributing positively, while commodities detracted.

Despite the market turmoil in March, stock positions were the top performing asset class over the 6-month period. Gains were made from longs in Japanese equity indices, which continued to outperform amid mounting pressure on constituent firms to focus more on shareholder interests. This resulted in the Nikkei having its second-best quarterly performance of the last decade in Q2 2023. After a challenging year in 2022, tech stocks staged a renaissance with the NASDAQ 100 finishing H1 2023 up over 30% having lost 33% in 2022. Excitement around the advent of AI in Q2 2023 propelled tech stocks higher which benefitted the Fund's long positions in both the S&P500 and NASDAQ 100 indices.

Inflation assets struggled, although positive overall. Commodities weighed on performance, with losses across energies and metals, notably oil and copper. Brent crude oil posted its longest run of quarterly losses in data going back more than three decades, ending the period on its fourth consecutive quarter of decline, amid robust supplies and continuing concerns over demand. Inflation linked bonds moderated losses to an extent.

Bond positions were slightly accretive over the 6-month period. In Q1 2023 this was predominantly led by longer dated US treasuries, which experienced the best quarter since the pandemic turmoil of Q1 2020. Performance was flat nearer the front end of the curve, as 2-year US treasuries yields gave up February's gains during the March tumult to finish the quarter broadly in line with the level at the start of the year. Credit followed a similar story, with European CDS indices starting the year positively in line with equities. In Q2 bond positions weighed on performance as US positions detracted across maturities. Gilts added to losses as prices fell to their lowest level since the UK LDI crisis, after several inflation releases surprised on the upside, leaving the UK with the highest CPI rate in the G7. Australian positions fared little better as central banks continued the campaign to tame inflation. Japanese bonds provided some relief as the Bank of Japan gave no indication of a tightening in policy.

Exposure continued to increase over the 6-month period. The bond momentum de-gear signal deactivated during March, having initialised earlier in the year. In the second quarter the correlation and the volatility overlays remained inactive across all asset classes. The momentum overlay was active in commodities increasing and decreasing its de-gear signal as the second quarter progressed. Coming into June the momentum overlay activated in both bonds and equities; however, the de-gear signal of the latter was reduced to an immaterial level by the period end.

Future outlook

As a fully systematic investment manager, AHL does not have a market outlook in the same way as a discretionary portfolio manager. Now and in the future, the Fund will continue to adapt its strategy automatically based on new information, aiming to take profitable positions based on patterns in historic data.

Man GLG Asia Pacific (ex-Japan) Equity Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

MSCI Asia ex Japan ended the first half of 2023 in what was a rollercoaster period for the asset class. Against a backdrop of moderate headline returns, performance at a factor level saw considerable divergence, reflecting weakness in China's economic recovery and enthusiasm around the adoption of generative AI.

After adding nearly +10% at the start of the year on optimism surrounding the reopening, MSCI China fell -20% as the economic data disappointed relative to market expectations. In contrast, MSCI Taiwan and MSCI South Korea saw significant gains, led by semiconductors and tech hardware on hopes AI adoption will act as the catalyst for a new tech cycle in Asia.

Performance review

Man GLG Asia Pacific (ex Japan) Equity Alternative (the 'Fund') generated a positive net return<sup>1</sup>. Performance over the period has been a mixed bag. After a good start to the year, performance has been more muted in the second quarter which has seen us give back all our outperformance. Initial alpha was driven primarily by strong positioning around China post-covid reopening exposure. That has since been reversed as economic growth has disappointed relative to market expectations. The stocks we are exposed to (e.g. brewers, travel and gaming) are seeing a very strong recovery and upwards earnings revisions, but the market has shown very little differentiation in terms of share price performance.

At a stock level, top performers included SK Hynix, our long-held position in Korean memory semis, which rallied in May on prospects of market share gains given geopolitical issues impacting Micron, and the scope for a positive volume impact from generative AI demand. A short position in a cosmetics stock was also a significant contributor in the first half on reports of a miss to its upcoming earnings report. The company also saw downgrades to its FY numbers on a weaker cosmetics sales outlook in China, an area it is seeing a meaningful deterioration in brand equity. Another top contributor was a short position in a b2c ecommerce platform. The stock has fallen significantly since initiation in late January on weaker-than-expected demand for larger ticket items and aggressive discounting in the platform space. Its earnings expectations were cut again following further weakness in appliance and electronics sales, where the company derives c. a substantial proportion of its revenue.

Conversely, the Fund was negatively impacted by short positioning in Taiwanese equities which have performed exceptionally well against a backdrop of negative earnings revisions at index level. Many of these stocks witnessed earnings downgrades throughout the period on recession concerns in DM but the market has appeared to look past negative EPS revisions to rapidly price in the next cycle. A short position in a tech hardware company that manufactures PCs, laptops and displays reported a small gross margin beat, but remains in a downgrade cycle. Like much of tech in Taiwan it performed very strongly, negatively impacting the fund. A long position in Zhong An Online P&C was another detractor, which fell after issuing a profit warning relating to USD strength in 22H2, despite a strong underwriting outlook and improvements in its combined ratio. The stock's sensitivity to USD/CNY has been material headwind in FY22 but the relative weakness in CNY has shown signs of reversing since bottoming in late October. We see no change in our investment case and superior premium growth should deliver increasing scale benefits and combined ratio gains.

Future outlook

In recent weeks, we have been focussing heavily on whether developments within generative AI kicks off a new investment cycle in DM, with associated productivity gains driving better than feared economic growth. The equity market has been quick to revalue the entire tech hardware supply chain in Asia on hopes of a new tech cycle as evidenced by strong price performance of the sector. We recognise that the use cases for AI are evolving rapidly and believe this may potentially act as a catalyst start another tech hardware cycle. We have since selectively added AI-related exposure in North Asia, moving to a net long position in both Taiwan and South Korea I.T.

Man GLG Convertible Arbitrage Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

During the first quarter, global markets generated - profits despite the banking turmoil. Convertibles were only able to partially benefit from this tailwind but were able to mitigate from the losses in February and when liquidity dried up in financials. During the second quarter, a bullish market provided a good environment for convertibles. During May convertibles were able to mitigate on the downside risk generating a small return.

Global CB new issuance totalled nearly $39bn over the first 6 months of the year. The majority came from issuers in the US $27.2bn while Europe contributed $6.7bn and Japan contributed $1bn. At the same stage last year global CB issuance was just under $11bn.

Performance review

Man GLG Convertible Arbitrage Alternative declined<sup>1</sup> during the half year period. Performance was mostly driven in large part by cost of credit and vol hedges, a collapse in vol, and very low volume in convertible trading. The collapse in equity vol due to the AI/bitcoin/Tesla rally reduced gamma trading opportunities and overall convert valuations in the 'non-busted' cohort. Convertible trading volumes overall in 1H have been very low as outright/long only investors retrenched from the market and reduced our portfolio turnover. Of note, positive performance in the broader convertible market this year has largely been driven by high beta/distressed credit which our fund is typically underweight by design.

Future outlook

Looking to the second half of 2023, we believe the macro risk reward is weighted to the downside, although the potential landing has been pushed out at least 6 months. The Fund continues to run considerable credit and equity vol hedge while tactically monetizing a smaller rho hedge relative to 2022. As in prior historical cases, a disruption should favor our positioning and provide opportunities to reload risk as well as benefit our long vega position. We believe the vol collapse in general is overdone (commensurate with the AI and Tesla rally) and anticipate a return to normalized levels.

Secondly, the yield curve inversion is proving more costly for lower spread (<500bps) credit that comprises the vast majority of fund risk. In either landing scenario hard or soft, the yield curve should steepen and would materially help yield and carry in the portfolio. As for convertible trading in the 2H, we see long only funds cautiously stepping back in to chase the rally and improving overall flow. Looking at the primary convert market, large high yield maturity walls in the coming 12 months should provide impetus for increased primary issuance (and PnL) starting in 2024 and also increased secondary churn.

Finally, we have hired a new fundamental credit analyst with meaningful experience in corporate transactions and expect an increase in our event PnL<sup>2</sup> from bond exchanges as maturities continue to approach for our high quality busted names. We believe this is a PnL source in the market where we could improve and addressed the need with this new hire.

Man GLG RI Global Sustainable Growth Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

Equity markets continue to reflect the tension between inflationary pressures and central bank tightening, on the one hand, and the resilience of economies and corporate performance, on the other. Inflation remains above target on both sides of the Atlantic, not least because labour markets remain tight. While the strong performance of equity markets in H1 acknowledged the extent to which companies are benefitting from the resilience of the macro-economy, nervousness about a policy-led downturn also prevails.

Performance review

The Fund enjoyed positive performance<sup>1</sup> in the first half of the year. This performance was driven by the long portfolio which outpaced the rise in global equities with good share price gains across the core positions. The long portfolio more than compensated for the negative contribution from the short book. Some of the Fund's largest positive contributors to performance were Abcam, L'Oréal, Adobe Inc., and Ryanair.

Biotechnology company Abcam benefitted from a review of strategic opportunities following an activist campaign by its founder. We have long been impressed by Abcam's market share gains in the structurally growing market for research antibodies, and how this has been accompanied by a high and improving gross margin. The higher share price points to how Abcam's true value is now coming to the fore. Consumer name L'Oréal performed well as the market rewarded high quality companies that offer top-line resilience, strong financials and robust balance sheets. L'Oréal's leading position within the beauty industry, and its strong performance during past periods of economic uncertainty, has underpinned our confidence in the position. Large cap technology name Adobe Inc reported strong Q2 results in June, with revenue growth and margin expansion driving its strong share price performance. Adobe's generative AI product, Firefly, which helps to generate digital imagery, is expected to be a multi-year growth driver. Ryanair's announcement of a new aircraft order from Boeing, consisting of 300 Max-10s to be delivered between FY27 and FY34, followed in the same month by strong FY23 (to end-March) results, contributed to its strong share price performance over the six months. With FY23 net profits of Eur 1.43bn and the achievement of a net cash position by the end of March, we believe Ryanair enjoys excellent foundations ahead of what we believe will be a strong period of expansion over the next ten years.

Delivery Hero and Puma were two of the long positions which detracted from performance. Delivery Hero's preliminary FY22 results were largely in line with expectations, but the share price reacted negatively to concerns about deceleration in the growth of GMV (gross merchandise value: the value of orders handled by its platforms). We added to the position because we believe Delivery Hero can deliver positive EBITDA in FY23 and positive free cash flow in FY24, without jeopardizing its ability to grow. Puma's strong revenue growth of 14% in the first quarter failed to arrest its share price underperformance, despite the company limiting the erosion of its gross margin to -70 basis points. Indeed, Puma reiterated its high single digit sales growth guidance for FY23 and maintained its operating profit guidance for the year. The negative share price was largely in reaction to the weak sales performance in North America where the market remains highly promotional, particularly in apparel. We believe that elevating the brand's perception and upgrading the distribution quality mix in the US are the right things to do by the new CEO, and are achievable given the current product momentum in basketball, running, motorsport and football.

The synthetic short portfolio made a negative contribution to the performance of the Fund. However, in a strong year for equities, we are pleased that the short book did not lose more money than its size would have implied. The bulk of the short portfolio continues to be represented by the hedging book which consists of both individual names and indices which have been selected to control both the Fund's behavioural and directional biases. The share element of the hedge book is highly diverse, and not based upon any fundamental judgments. Nevertheless, these are companies that would naturally not meet our long criteria. The remainder of the short book consists of single stock short positions selected for fundamental reasons, acting as an additional source of returns. Here we would highlight the positive contribution to performance which came from synthetically shorting several companies in the period, some of which have been now closed. We opportunistically will add to the short book as we develop new stock-specific short ideas.

Future outlook

We continue to highlight the importance of the earnings growth that can be achieved by the long portfolio. Valuation levels are more difficult to predict, although we would not be surprised if today's new-found multiple stability continues post the hiatus (up and then down) of the 2019-2022 period. Based upon our five-year models, we forecast an average weighted mid-teens EPS growth from the long portfolio companies through to FY27. Given today's macro-economic uncertainties, we look for this to come from company-specific market share gains in structurally growing end-markets, underpinned by pricing power, robust profitability and the financial firepower to reinvest. We will also look to maintain a synthetic short book that can provide supplementary long-term alpha for the Fund as well as a partial hedge for the long portfolio. With the approach of the H1 reporting period, we will continue to look to earnings traction as the key driver of portfolio returns both this year and in the years to come.

Man GLG RI Sustainable Energy Transition Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

Performance benefited from the strategy exposure to Oil & Gas while the one to Alternative Energy and Utilities was detrimental. The short position in selected North American Integrated and Exploration and Production O&G companies added. With high operational leverage to the price of conventional energy sources – which corrected over the period – these companies experienced a significant sequential slowdown in their free cash flows. Several of these names are also laggards in the context of energy transition therefore the team's structural negative view vis-à-vis their European peers.

In the opposite direction, exposure in the Alternative Energy space detracted from performance. The market in renewable technologies is particularly volatile, with most names reacting abruptly to news about government tax credits intended at stimulating internal manufacturing. Established players are being penalised when perceived to miss on these incentives while others, with frequently unproven business models and incapable of self-financing themselves, rally. We continue to avoid exposure to Western manufacturing in the most commoditised parts of the PV solar and EV batteries value chains upon conviction that the competitive advantage some Asian players have acquired is hardly replicable. Instead of replicating existing Chinese and Asian value chains for PV solar and EV batteries, Western governments should be stimulating innovation in the next generation of alternative energy technologies such as pyramidal lenses solar panels, sodium-ion and solid-state EV batteries and nuclear fusion - examples of emerging technologies not yet dominated by China.

In Utilities, the preference for the green energy majors, with meaningful renewables' capacity in operation and development pipelines also rested from performance, with the market questioning the future returns which these companies will be able to derive from their investments.

Performance review

The Fund delivered negative performance throughout H11. The team maintained the tight discipline in portfolio construction, with an exposure at fund and each strategy level which can be described as neutral in general terms. When compared with positioning in the end of last year, three main moves are evident. Firstly, we have moved to a long position in Utilities, with strong preference for the renewable exposed ones, which we believe to benefit ahead from the deflationary trend in several supply chains, like solar.

Secondly, we increased the short in Building Materials upon conviction on a cyclical slowdown. Both US and European residential markets are observing and alarming deterioration of housing permits, which should see construction spend deteriorate in the not-too-distant future, with prospective tightening bank lending conditions potentially an incremental negative ahead. For now, non-residential seems to be more resilient but historically it has shown some late cycle features, therefore also prone to correction at some point.

Thirdly, we moved into a long position in Basic Resources – particularly European names – where we identify several names exposed to the “decarbonisation leads to increased commodity intensity” thesis. We also believe that China - which accounts for 50% of demand for most metals and mined products - will at some point show signs of a pick in economic activity, with financial conditions and credit impulse showing tentative signs of a rebound from historically depressed levels.

Future outlook

After a lacklustre performance in the first half of the year, our team believes that several of our strategies are well-positioned to generate value during the second half. We expect to benefit from the incoming upcycle in the O&G and mining equipment capital expenditure cycles, benefiting from increased investment levels after years of stagnation. We are positioned for a slowdown in capital goods' orders, implying lower levels of activity ahead, under-absorption of fixed costs and therefore downward pressure on earnings. Additionally, we identify selective end markets within renewables – like wind – which show symptoms of bottoming out.

We are active in the EV batteries value chain, where we see opportunities in the arbitrage between cheap, IP-rich cell manufacturers vs expensive, commoditized cathode producers in Korea - among many other examples.

Man GLG RI Sustainable Credit Opportunities – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

Fixed income markets have varied over the last 6 months with the market stress witnessed in 2022 continuing into 2023, as the US 10-year peaked at 4.09% following the US Regional Banking Crisis. However, after a volatile first quarter characterised by stubborn inflation and periods of acute market stress, Q2 2023 saw a return in risk appetite, particularly following the US debt ceiling resolution, allowing both credit spreads and equities to rally. Bond yields on the other hand moved towards the top of recent ranges. Despite the Fed pausing their rate hiking cycle for the first time since March 2022, other central banks continued to raise rates, including a resumption after a pause from Australia and Canada. In the UK, further inflation surprises to the upside led to a significant adjustment higher in interest rate expectations, and by June end 10-year gilt yields were almost 100 basis points higher than they were at the end of Q1 2023.

While 2022 proved to be a challenging year for high yield investors, the market has rallied through the most part of 2023 with the ICE BofA Global High Yield Index returning 3.6% YTD at the end of Q2. Overall global high yield spreads finished the quarter at 450 bps, or 51 bps tighter. The US outperformed Pan Europe, with spreads tightening by 53 bps compared to 32 bps respectively. In a sign that growth concerns receded from investors' minds, lower quality portions of the market dramatically outperformed higher quality portions of the market. In terms of sectors, Retail, Leisure, and Transportation outperformed, while Real Estate, Energy and Services underperformed. The ICE BofA Contingent Capital Index which includes IG and HY rated issuers tightened by 60 bps on the quarter recovering many of the losses experienced in Q1.

Performance review

The Fund finished H1 positively<sup>1</sup> and ahead of where it was at the start of the year, although less than its benchmark<sup>2</sup>.

Over the last 6 months, against a difficult macro backdrop, Man GLG RI SCO has still produced periods of outperformance vs the ICE BofA Global High Yield Index. For example, the global high yield market experienced a volatile first quarter, with a strong initial rally followed by a downturn in early March due to increasing financial stability risks. The Fund was able to capitalise on the initial rally and key to this outperformance were credits in the Swiss financials and Italian healthcare spaces. It is important to note that the benchmark does not follow the same constraints as the Fund with regards to issuer E&S credentials, therefore such periods of outperformance are testament to the team's bottom-up approach and ability to generate returns across the cycle.

Key detractors in Q2 were mainly a more defensive credit beta posture YTD as well as security selection decisions in the consumer staples space. The name in question has come under stress more recently and is a shared holding across the Global High Yield and Credit Opportunities platform.

Future outlook

In many ways our outlook has not changed from prior quarters. The consequence of tighter monetary policy will be slower growth and we still have yet to see a recessionary premium in cyclical parts of the market. Looking forward we expect dispersion to accelerate and create more opportunities for investors. We maintain a strong preference for senior and secured exposures and will be guided by bottom up fundamentals in terms of where value resides. This is pointing us towards senior financials, gaming, consumer staples and special situations in real estate and business services. Stress and distress are likely to accelerate creating new opportunities to provide capital to liquidity constrained companies with good business models at highly attractive terms.

We remain optimistic about the stock picking environment but believe that caution on pure credit beta is warranted. The Strategy is currently invested in a number of deep value opportunities with a range of catalysts to drive performance in the future irrespective of market direction. Additionally, the team will continue to work alongside issuers to encourage best practices in line with the Fund's ESG objectives.

Man AHL TargetClimate – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

After a year of unprecedented monetary tightening coupled with historic selloffs in both bonds and equities, 2023 started on a relatively positive note. The sharp fall in natural gas prices, resilient sentiment indicators and the awakening of China from its Covid induced slumber, all pointed to the possibility that inflation may have seen its peak and a global recession was to be averted. The hubris of January evaporated in February as several US data releases showed that inflation was still running hot and was in danger of becoming entrenched, concerns of a 'no landing' scenario increased investor bets that rates would continue to rise. Trends reversed sharply mid-March in the wake of the mini banking crisis that ensnared Silicon Valley Bank, First Republic, Signature and Credit Suisse among others. Haven assets, in particular government bonds rallied sharply, with the 2-year US treasury yields posting the largest one-day decline since 1987, as bond volatility, measured by the MOVE Index, spiked to a 14 year high. The second quarter then started on a cautious note as markets assessed the likelihood of broader financial contagion following March's mini banking crisis alongside the impending US debt-ceiling deadline. Further turmoil failed to materialise, however, and volatility subsided with the VIX index ending the quarter at its lowest level since the start of the pandemic. In this environment, bonds were mixed, but stocks generally rose, led by the rally in AI.

Performance review

Against this backdrop, Man AHL TargetClimate (the 'Fund') performed positively<sup>1</sup> with profits in stocks, credit, and bonds while commodities detracted.

Equities drove performance over the period, with holdings in the capitals goods, software and services and semiconductors sectors buoyed by excitement around AI. On the negative side, positions in consumer staples and pharmaceuticals detracted.

Credit ended the period up with gains from tightening credit spreads. Positions in real estate and food added, while a name in media and entertainment lost out.

Government bonds added over the period, with Danish and Dutch bonds the top contributors.

Commodity prices generally fell over the period, with metals in particular feeling the effects of a slower than anticipated demand rebound in China, coupled with increased supply. This led to losses in metals essential for the green transition, such as copper and silver.

The Fund applies the Man Group sustainable investments framework to select securities for the sustainable long portfolio, while risk is managed by the hedging futures overlay. At the end of the reporting period, the momentum overlay had a modest de-gear in commodities while the volatility and correlation overlays were broadly inactive.

Scope 1 & 2 weighted average carbon emissions intensity across the corporate issuers, scaled to 100% exposure was 35.6, versus 35.6 tCO<sub>2</sub>e/m$ for the MSCI World Climate Paris Aligned index, which is used for comparison of environmental metrics.

Future outlook

As a fully systematic investment manager, AHL does not have a market outlook in the same way as a discretionary portfolio manager. Now and in the future, the Fund will continue to adapt its strategy automatically based on new information, aiming to take profitable positions based on patterns in historic data.

Man GLG Core Economy Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

2023 started off on a surprising note with markets rallying in context of an impending global slowdown and a rising interest rate environment. The environment changed in February on signs of persistent inflation and a continued hawkish stance from the US Federal Reserve. March saw volatility spike following the failure of Silicon Valley Bank (the second largest bank failure in US history) and Signature Bank (another sizable bank). This was followed by First Republic, which got propped up by a group of lenders, and perhaps most notably, UBS' acquisition of Credit Suisse. Despite this volatility in the financial sector, the S&P 500 delivered positive returns, largely attributable to FANG stocks and the tech sector, while the industrials, materials and energy sectors were all flat to down. Market breadth continued to be poor in April and May as the strength in mega cap tech is obfuscating broader performance. Enthusiasm over artificial intelligence and its potential impact drove markets even higher towards the end of the period.

Performance review

Man GLG Core Economy Equity Alternative (the "Fund") ended the period in positive territory<sup>1</sup> (net of fees).

The top contributor to the Fund's returns during this period was a machinery/capital goods long, Parker-Hannifin Corporation. Parker-Hannifin gained on the back of strong earnings reports in February and rallied again in June on the cyclical strength in the industrial markets along with positive datapoints in aerospace from which they have leverage due to recently acquired Meggit.

Toll Brothers was another top performer benefiting from a strong market for homebuilders in the first half of 2023 due to, ironically, high mortgage rates suppressing housing inventory from existing homes. Owens Corning (OC), a large holding, also performed well as a result of several commodity inputs which saw major declines in 2023, most notably natural gas and oil, coupled with strong pricing and steady demand, as roofing is mostly repair and replacement market. These led to a positive revision to its earnings this year and a strong relative performance.

The Fund's largest detractors in the first half were primarily in the short book. Among them was a short position in a multinational transport/e-commerce name which had been surprising to the upside the last few quarters based on cost savings. However, it is the team's view their historical difficulty holding onto cost savings efforts will continue. Another short position in the transportation sector also negatively impacted the fund, though it is the team's view that the name was ahead of itself in the context of a slowing economy. Another detractor was a short position in an LTL trucking company which rallied on excitement of a competitor (YELL) going bankrupt.

Future outlook

The Fund is positioned for choppy markets and very likely weakening of fundamentals in 2023. With that, there are several longs which the investment team believe already price in a recession and worst-case fundamentals for the global economy. The investment team's view is macroeconomic sentiment is that inflation will continue to subside but will be still lofty for the Fed's liking. As a result, we are short some companies that benefitted from reflation and are currently over-earning, as we think the Fed will continue with rate hikes until inflation returns to normalized 2% level.

Man GLG Emerging Markets Corporate Credit Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

Launched in February 2023 (internal book since January 2019), the GLG Emerging Markets Corporate Credit Fund aims to provide long and short exposure to the EM Corporate universe with the goal of providing positive absolute returns.

In what has been a difficult environment for EM Corporates and specifically Asia credit. The Fund has been able to navigate the environment well and has delivered positive returns in each calendar year. With performance driven from both long and short positions with the latter factor being crucial when investing in certain geographies. The returns compare favourably with broader EM Corporate indices which have delivered sub-par returns over the past decade.

Performance review

Performance continues to remain robust with the net returns since launch being positive<sup>1</sup>. Many peers continue to be caught up in the ups and downs of the Chinese real estate market and we have largely steered clear of that volatility on a YTD basis with a preference for opportunities in Indonesian real estate and Indian renewables.

Main drivers of returns have been positions in metals and mining firm, Province of Buenos Aires and CEMEX in Mexico. The fund is positioned with a focus on short duration carry which is generating a YTW of around ~9% with an effective duration of 2 years. We continue to maintain a relatively defensive posture in terms of investments with a net exposure of 73% (excluding government bonds). Additionally, we take a relatively sceptical view on the support potential from China fiscal policy and view China real estate exposure as very speculative at the current moment.

Future outlook

We believe that valuations remain fair, but not appealing at an index level once you strip out China HY. We remain sceptical that China's fiscal policy will come to the rescue of growth and believe there is still some downside risk to real estate in this market and retain light exposure.

We do see opportunities in India mainly in high quality telcos with good carry on a YTC basis as well as in a few special situations that have been under pressure due to recent headlines. There are also arbitrage opportunities within capital structures where we can get long senior debt and short subordinated debt in an Indian minerals firm.

In Turkey, we see opportunities in companies that are net cash and retain strong fundamentals with limited downside risks related to currency devaluation.

Finally, we are becoming emboldened by opportunities in Latin America and prefer opportunities in Mexican banks, Brazilian oil field services and within Brazilian special situations.

The net exposure of the strategy continues to increase as we invest in short-dated carry opportunities within the fund and we continue to see attractive idiosyncratic opportunities, but we retain a degree of caution given the difficult macro conditions still percolating in both developed and emerging markets.

Man GLG European Leaders Alternative – Semi-Annual Report Commentary

Market summary

The Man GLG European Leaders Alternative fund (the 'Fund') invests in European business that often enjoy favourable market positions, are protected from high barriers to entry and have pricing power. Typically, these businesses tend to exhibit the following characteristics, which we call "FORCES":

- Future Growth: they grow ahead of GDP
- Operating Margin: generate double-digit operating margins
- Return on Capital: generate double-digit return on capital employed
- Culture & Strategy: possess strong leadership, cultures and strategies
- Earnings Quality: report earnings that mirror economic reality
- Sustainable: are operated for the long-term with a balanced interests for all stakeholders

Performance review

The Fund had a good start since launching on 6th June 2023 and generated a positive return 1.82% net of fees<sup>1</sup>, with long positions and short positions both contributing to performance in the period.

Identifying companies that are strong across all six forces is rare, which is why the churn of our long book tends to be low. They also can be expensive, while our strategy is sensitive to valuation. Our investment process is fine-tuned to identify inflection points or opportunities when irrational short-term concerns override the long-term investment opportunity.

We employ three strategies for long investments:

- Compounding Leaders: businesses that exhibit strong FORCES, where valuation is reasonable and we can underwrite a comfortable double-digit investment return over time with a margin of safety on both earnings estimates and valuation expectations.
- Emerging Leaders: businesses on a journey to improve their FORCES from good to great, over time, often after an identified inflection point which may include a change of management or strategy.
- Value Leadership: business where the FORCES are underappreciated, and or the strategic nature of the asset is misunderstood.

In the month, our "compounding leaders", "emerging leaders", "accounting shorts" and "fundamental short" strategies all contributed positively to returns, while "value leadership" modestly detracted from performance.

Future outlook

At month end, our gross exposure was +161% and net exposure was +9.8%.

We consider the current opportunity set to be attractive with valuations for our identified European Leaders being, generally, at a discount to history. We have also identified a good balance of opportunities across our three strategies.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. Returns may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations.

A stock's market value is a forward-looking metric that reflects a company's future cash flows. The book value of equity is an accounting measure based on the historic cost principle, and reflects past issuances of equity, augmented by any profits or losses, and reduced by dividends and share buybacks. The higher the ratio, the higher the premium the market is willing to pay for the company above its hard assets. A low ratio may signal a good investment opportunity, but it could also mean something is fundamentally wrong with the company. The ratio is less meaningful for some types of companies, such as those in technology sectors. This is because such companies have hidden assets such as intellectual property which are of great value, but not reflected in the book value.

2. Significant accounting policies

(a) Accounting convention

The unaudited financial statements have been prepared in accordance International Accounting Standard 34: Interim Financial Reporting (“IAS 34”) as adopted by the European Union (“EU”). The unaudited financial statements have been prepared using the historical cost basis except for financial assets and liabilities held at fair value through profit or loss which have been measured at fair value.

The unaudited financial statements do not include all the information and disclosures required in the annual financial statements, and should be read in conjunction with the Fund’s audited annual financial statements as at 31 December 2022 which have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards (“IFRS”) as adopted by the European Union. These unaudited interim financial statements have been compiled using accounting policies, methods of computation and presentation which are consistent with the audited annual financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2022, unless otherwise stated.

The preparation of unaudited financial statements in accordance with IFRS requires management to make judgements, estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported and disclosures made in these unaudited financial statements and accompanying notes, including certain valuation assumptions. Uncertainty about these assumptions and estimates could result in outcomes that require a material adjustment to the carrying amount of assets or liabilities in the future.

The combined fund balances are expressed in US$, being the presentation currency of the Fund as a whole. For combined fund balances in unaudited statement of financial position, the non US$ Portfolios are translated using the exchange rate at the date of unaudited statement of financial position. For combined fund balances in unaudited statement of comprehensive income, the non US$ Portfolios are translated at the average exchange rate prevailing during the period. The combined subscriptions and redemptions in the unaudited statement of changes in net assets are also translated at the average rate prevailing during the current period. The translation gain resulting from the preparation of the combined fund balances in the unaudited financial statements amounting to US$154,156,326 (30 June 2022: loss of US$356,927,923) has been shown in the combined fund column of unaudited statement of comprehensive income. The gain/(loss) does not have any effect on the individual Portfolios.

(b) Changes in accounting policy and disclosure

New standards, interpretations and amendments adopted by the Fund:

There were no recent accounting pronouncements applicable to the Fund in the current period.

At the date of authorisation of the financial statements there were a number of other Standards and Interpretations which were in issue but not yet effective. Management anticipate that the adoption of these Standards and Interpretations in future periods will have no material impact on the financial statements of the Fund.

Fair value of financial instruments

The Fund classifies fair value measurements using a fair value hierarchy that reflects the significance of the inputs used in determining the measurements in line with IFRS 13.

The fair value hierarchy has the following levels:

- Level 1 – Quoted market price in an active market for an identical instrument.
- Level 2 – Valuation techniques based on observable inputs. This category includes instruments valued using: quoted market prices in active markets for similar instruments; quoted prices for similar instruments in markets that are considered less than active; or other valuation techniques where all significant inputs are directly or indirectly observable from market data.
- Level 3 – Valuation techniques using significant unobservable inputs. This category includes all instruments where the valuation technique includes inputs not based on observable data and the unobservable inputs could have a significant impact on the instrument's valuation. This category includes instruments that are valued based on quoted prices for similar instruments where significant unobservable adjustments or assumptions are required to reflect differences between the instruments.

Valuation techniques

Listed or publicly traded investment in equity and debt securities, managed funds and derivatives

When fair values of listed securities and debt securities at the reporting date, as well as publicly traded derivatives, are based on quoted market prices or binding dealer price quotations, without any deduction for transaction costs, the instruments are included within Level 1 of the hierarchy.

Unlisted debt securities and treasury bills

The Fund invests in debt securities, corporate and government bonds and treasury securities. In the absence of a quoted price in an active market, they are valued using observable inputs such as recently executed transaction prices in securities of the issuer or comparable issuers and yield curves. Adjustments are made to the valuations when necessary to recognise differences in the instruments terms. To the extent that the significant inputs are observable, the Fund categorises these investments as Level 2.

Unlisted asset-backed securities

The fair values of investments in asset-backed securities, for which there is currently no active market, are calculated using a valuation model which is accepted in the industry. The most frequently applied valuation techniques include forward pricing and swap models, using present value calculations. The models incorporate various inputs including both credit and debit valuation adjustments for counterparty and own credit risk, foreign exchange spot and forward rates and interest rate curves. For these financial instruments, significant inputs into models are market observable and are included within Level 2.

Over-the-counter derivatives

The Fund uses widely recognised valuation models for determining fair values of over-the-counter interest rate swaps, currency swaps and forward foreign exchange contracts. The most frequently applied valuation techniques include forward pricing and swap models, using present value calculations. The models incorporate various inputs including both credit and debit valuation adjustments for counterparty and own credit risk, foreign exchange spot and forward rates and interest rate curves. For these financial instruments, significant inputs into models are market observable and are included within Level 2.

Unlisted equity investments

The Fund invests in private equity companies which are not quoted in an active market. Transactions in such investments do not occur on a regular basis. The Fund uses a market based valuation technique for these positions. The Investment Manager determines comparable public companies (peers) based on industry, size, leverage and strategy, and calculates an appropriate earnings multiple for each comparable company identified. The multiple is calculated by dividing the enterprise value of the comparable company by an earnings measure. The trading multiple is then discounted for considerations such as illiquidity and size differences between the comparable companies based on company-specific facts and circumstances. The discounted multiple is applied to the corresponding earnings measure of the investee company to measure the fair value. The Fund classifies the fair value of these investments as Level 3.

For all other financial instruments, fair value is determined using valuation techniques. Valuation techniques include net present value techniques, comparison to similar instruments for which market observable prices exist, options pricing models and other relevant valuation models.

Man GLG Financial Credit Opportunities commenced its operations on 27 June 2023, hence there were no investments as at 31 December 2022.

Short-term balances are excluded from the tables as their carrying value at the period end approximates their fair value.

Investments are reviewed at each financial reporting point to ensure that they are correctly classified between Level 1, 2 and 3 in accordance with the fair value hierarchy outlined above. Where an investment's characteristics change during the period and investments no longer meet the criteria of a given level, they are transferred into a more appropriate level at the end of relevant financial reporting period.

For the period ended 30 June 2023 and 31 December 2022, there were no transfers between Level 1 and Level 2.

A reconciliation of the movements in Level 3 assets/liabilities for the period ended 30 June 2023 and 31 December 2022 is set out below:

The fair value of investments classified within Level 3 is based on unobservable inputs that may be subject to significant variability. Because of the inherent uncertainty of valuations with respect to such investments, the Fund's estimates of fair value may differ significantly from fair values that would have been used had observable inputs been available for the valuation of such investments, and the differences could be material.

The table below discloses the valuation technique used in the valuation of Level 3 investments and quantifies the effect of significant unobservable inputs used to value investments that fall in this category. The ranges of these fair value are not representative of the appropriate inputs to use when calculating the fair value of any one Level 3 asset or liability. Accordingly, the ranges of fair value presented below do not represent certainty in, or possible ranges of fair value measurements of the Fund's Level 3 assets/liabilities.

4. Financial assets and liabilities at fair value through profit or loss (continued)

Fair value of financial instruments (continued)

The fair value impact of the discount range disclosed above is the Investment Manager's assessment of the range of possible illiquidity discounts. The Investment Manager's Independent Pricing Committee has assessed that, based on the information available, there is no reason that the net asset value provided by the underlying managed funds Investment Managers or their administrators should not represent the most appropriate basis for valuing these assets and therefore no fair value adjustment is applied. The impact of the range of possible unobservable impacts on the fair value of investments is an increase/decrease of up to €6,267,582/(6,222,491) (31 December 2022: increase/decrease of up to €4,325,560/(4,335,213)) for Man GLG High Yield Opportunities and US$Nil (31 December 2022: increase/decrease of up to US$10,940/(10,940)) for Man GLG Credit Multi-Strategy Alternative.

Forward currency contracts

As part of its portfolio management techniques, the Fund may use forward currency contracts to economically hedge any non-functional currency exposure (although formal hedge accounting is not used). Forward currency contracts may also be used for trading purposes. Forward currency contracts entered into by the Fund represent a firm commitment to buy or sell an underlying asset, or currency at a specified value and point in time based upon an agreed or contracted quantity.

Forward currency contracts may expose the Fund to the risks associated with the absence of an exchange market on which to close out an open position. The Investment Managers closely monitors the Fund's exposure under forward currency contracts as part of the overall management of the Fund's market risk.

Derivative financial instruments

The Fund may trade derivative financial instruments, including equity swaps, futures contracts, forward currency contracts, swaps contracts, option contracts, rights and warrants whose values are based upon an underlying asset, index, currency or interest rate.

The Fund is subject to both market and credit risk in trading derivative financial instruments. Market risk is the potential for changes in value due to changes in market interest rates, foreign exchange rates, indices and changes in the value of the underlying financial instruments. Credit risk is the possibility that a loss may occur if a counterparty fails to perform according to the terms of the contract. Substantially all derivative contracts are transacted on a margin basis. Such transactions may expose the Fund to significant off-balance sheet risk in the event margin deposits and collateral investments are not sufficient to cover losses incurred.

The Investment Manager manages the risk associated with these transactions by maintaining margin deposits and collateral investments with its brokers in compliance with individual exchange regulations and internal guidelines. The Investment Manager also takes an active role in managing and controlling the Fund's market and counterparty risks and monitoring trading activities and margin levels daily, and, as necessary, deposits additional collateral or reduces positions.

Credit default swaps are contracts in which the Fund pays or receives an interest flow in return for the counterparty accepting or selling all or part of the risk of default or failure to pay of a reference entity on which the swap is written. Where the Fund has bought protection, the maximum potential loss is the value of the interest flows the Fund is contracted to pay until maturity of the contract. Where the Fund has sold protection, the maximum potential loss is the nominal value of the protection sold.

The Fund may purchase or write put and call options through OTC markets. Options purchased by the Fund provide the Fund with the opportunity to purchase (call options) or sell (put options) the underlying asset at an agreed-upon value either on or before the expiration of the option. Options written by the Fund provide the purchaser of the option the opportunity to purchase from or sell to the Fund the underlying asset at an agreed-upon value either on or before the expiration of the option. Premiums received from writing options are marked-to-market and the resulting gains or losses are recorded in the unaudited statement of comprehensive income. The Fund may also invest in swaptions which are a combination of feature an option and an interest rate swap. The maximum loss to a buyer of an option is the loss of the premium. The writer of a call option has to bear the risk of an unfavourable change in the value underlying the option and, unless an offsetting long position is owned, the theoretical loss is unlimited. As at 30 June 2023, the Fund held written put options with a maximum pay out value of US$85,249,496 (31 December 2022: US$43,065,364) for Man AHL Multi Strategy Alternative.

Derivative financial instruments are generally based on notional amounts which are not recorded in the financial statements. These notional amounts represent the theoretical principal value on which the cash flows of the derivative transactions are based. Unrealised gains or losses, rather than notional amounts, or the exchange-traded derivatives traded by the Fund are included in the unaudited statement of financial position. The net unrealised gains or losses, rather than contract or notional amounts, represent the Fund's approximate future cash flows from trading activities.
