Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The MSCI Europe Index returned 8.6% in euro terms in the six months to 30 June 2025.

European markets displayed relative resilience in the face of volatility stemming from the US.

At the start of 2025, European markets began to show some resilience as US markets came under pressure – a reversal of the prevailing trend in recent years. US technology mega-caps suffered a correction following disruptive AI advancements from China's DeepSeek.

Markets then experienced a profound exogenous shock in early April in the form of the tariff policy initially unveiled by the Trump administration. Recurring threats of sweeping tariffs had cast a persistent shadow over markets during the first quarter, but the scale of levies announced on April 2nd ("Liberation Day") exceeded investors' fears.

However, the Trump administration quickly started to ease its stance on the level of tariffs or at least announce a pause, and global equity markets rallied strongly through to the year's half-way point.

European market gains were also supported by the prospect of significant extra fiscal stimulus. Trump's threat to remove military and financial support to Ukraine saw European governments react by stepping up defence spending plans – none more so than Germany, which eased fiscal rules in order to unleash a huge defence and infrastructure spending programme.

Financials (+23%) was the strongest sector in the European market, followed by utilities (+22%), communications services (+19%) and industrials (+18%), while the only areas in negative territory in euro terms were consumer discretionary (-7.0%) and healthcare (-4.3%).

Analysis of Portfolio Return

The Sub-Fund's Class A4 Euro Accumulating shares returned 1.4%* in the six months to 30 June 2025. The Sub-Fund's comparator benchmarks, the MSCI Europe Index and HFRX Equity Hedge EUR Index, returned 8.6% and 3.4% respectively.

While the return on the long book – averaging around 97% of NAV – was slightly ahead of the European market average, the short book (c.34% NAV) also saw share prices rise ahead of the market. The net result was that the Sub-Fund's modest gain over the period lagged the MSCI index return and the market participation level expected from its 64% average net market exposure.

This six-month performance should be viewed in the context of the one, three and five year returns for the Sub-Fund, which exceed those of the market despite the portfolio consistently having net market exposure below 100% during these periods.

The environment for the application of our long/short process was impacted by the market reaction to the unexpected and aggressive tariff programme announced by the Trump administration in early April. Markets had begun to anticipate this risk in advance, triggering a sharp sell-off in cyclical stocks through February and March – negatively impacting some areas of the long book. Markets then experienced a broad-based rally which provided a poor backdrop for profitable short positions.

While the short-term environment was unhelpful, we remain very confident in the ability of our variable long/short process to capitalise on any market dislocations which emerge as a result of short-term volatility. On this occasion, while the trade tariff uncertainty led to investor discomfort for several weeks, the data sets we analyse – covering both corporate and investor behaviour – didn't really show much signs of high stress or dislocation in valuations, so we have not significantly altered the exposures of the portfolio as a result.

Liontrust GF European Strategic Equity Fund

Within the long book, the bank positions were very beneficial. Spanish lenders Banco Santander (+60%) and Caixabank (+45%), and Italian bank UniCredit (+51%) featured within the long book's top 10 positive positions over the six months as they reported strong financial results and announced large-scale capital returns to shareholders via buyback programmes.

Despite the European Central Bank cutting rates eight times since June 2024, European banks continued to perform well, with ongoing momentum in net interest income and earnings growth.

Our investment framework has long recognised that the European banking sector is structurally healthier than it was in the wake of the global financial crisis. Valuations remain attractive relative to earnings power, with some institutions still trading at discounts to book value. Balance sheets are stronger, non-performing loans are low, and many banks are now generating surplus capital. These dynamics are encouraging for shareholders, with the potential for higher cash returns through dividends and buybacks in the years ahead.

Kongsberg Gruppen (+52%) was the most directly exposed to the uplift in military spending expectations. The Norwegian group supplies technologies to defence, energy, maritime, fisheries and aerospace industries. Its share price rally was also supported by the announcement of a major contract with Germany for the delivery of Joint Strike Missiles (JSM) to equip its fleet of F-35 fighter jets.

Betsson (+45%) was another portfolio highlight. The online betting group grew Q1 revenue 18% year-over-year to €294 million. Growth was broad-based, with casino revenue up 18% and sportsbook revenue climbing 22%, supported by an improved sportsbook margin of 8.0%, compared to 6.6% a year earlier.

Turning to the weaker long book positions, shares in 4imprint (-36%) slid after soft trading in the first two months of 2025 prompted it to issue cautious outlook comments. The marketer of promotional merchandise noted that order intake was down on the prior year comparable, with the potential impact of trade tariffs casting a shadow across the demand outlook for the rest of the year.

Gamma Communications (-27%), the B2B communications group, slid as it noted that although 2025 trading in continental Europe had begun positively, UK market conditions have softened – leading Gamma to initiate some cost-cutting measures.

Shares of Intercontinental Hotels Group (-19%) were also weak as February's release of results for 2024, which were in line with previous guidance, appeared to trigger some profit taking after a period of very strong relative performance in 2023 and 2024.

Within the short book, two of the more costly positions were a German radar and optronics specialist which rose strongly during the defence sector rally and a US quantum computing company which benefitted from AI speculation.

Portfolio Activity

Changes to the Sub-Fund's portfolio of holdings are driven by our annual review of companies' reports and accounts. This in-depth quantitative and qualitative review is core to the Cashflow Solution investment process. It involves the forensic analysis of historic cash flows and balance sheet developments.

We apply a simple quantitative screen using two measures of cash flow to create a composite ranking of the European universe of companies, with only the top 20% – the Cashflow Champions watchlist – qualifying for further qualitative analysis.

We then aim to pick the very best investments from within the watchlist by categorising stocks according to secondary scores. We also apply a set of key proprietary indicators. These allow us to designate the prevailing market regime and, in turn, optimise portfolio construction by emphasising different secondary scores within stock selection in order to target growth or value exposure.

Mindful of the market turbulence seen earlier in the year, we implemented selective portfolio changes as part of the annual review process, maintaining a focus on attractive cash flow stocks which provide a balanced portfolio style profile across growth, value or quality.

Outlook

At the current time, and despite the volatility seen during the first six months of 2025, our assessment of the European outlook remains stable and positive: valuations are reasonably attractive, stock markets remain in an uptrend, and there is little sign of the kind of poor corporate investment that would lead us to be more cautious.

Despite their strong performance, Europe's best cash flow stocks are still inexpensive. Our analysis shows the constituents of the Cashflow Champions watchlist have rallied strongly from their very low valuations a few months ago but remain cheap versus history.

From a style perspective, our indicators continue to point to a balanced portfolio by style, i.e. some exposure to quality, growth and value. In the event of a return to geo-political or economic related volatility, in the medium term we would expect our investment process to take advantage of any significant market dislocation and subsequent opportunities that may arise.

Liontrust GF Special Situations Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The FTSE All-Share Index returned 9.1% in the six months to 30 June 2025.

Mounting geopolitical instability and uncertainty over US trade policy defined the market environment over the first half of 2025. This uncertainty peaked in April after sweeping tariffs announced by President Trump, dubbed 'Liberation Day', sent shockwaves through global markets.

Investor sentiment subsequently recovered on signs of a softening approach from the US administration, including a 90-day delay on tariffs for non-retaliatory countries, which allowed markets to rebound strongly in May and make further modest gains in June.

Market dynamics shifted alongside investor sentiment, with large-caps and defensive areas holding up best through to the market's trough in early April, before small and mid-caps led the rebound

The Sub-Fund

The Sub-Fund's Class C3 Sterling Accumulating shares returned -2.1%* in the six months to 30 June 2025.

The Sub-Fund's underperformance accrued during the market weakness in the first four months, before recovering some ground relative to the index in May and June.

The Sub-Fund has had a longstanding overweight in the industrials sector (currently ~12%), favoured for its companies' strong intellectual property, global distribution reach, and robust, though somewhat cyclical, cash flow returns on invested capital. However, industrials bore the brunt of the tariff uncertainty, with constituent names exposed to a broad-based sell-off as investors digested the implications of both direct tariff exposure and potential second-order effects on global economic growth.

As the Sub-Fund's holdings in the sector are generally comprised of businesses with broad global footprints (lending a degree of flexibility in terms of optimising manufacturing and distribution) and strong pricing power, we feel that the first-order effects of tariffs on our companies' trading are well-contained. However, it is impossible to predict any secondary effects stemming from weaker global growth and this wider uncertainty weighed on sentiment in the immediate aftermath of the tariff announcements.

The portfolio also exhibits a strong bias towards the quality style factor as a result of the investment process, which targets companies with enduring competitive advantage stemming from intangible asset strengths, resulting in high cash flow returns on capital. However, value style characteristics outperformed quality and growth in the period: the MSCI UK Value Index rose 9.8% and the MSCI UK Growth Index returned 7.8%, compared with the MSCI UK Quality Index's 4.8% return.

Within the traditional value sectors, banks extended their run of very strong performance, a trend worth highlighting given the portfolio has zero exposure to the sector. The FTSE All Share banks sub-sector delivered a gain of 24%. The managers remain convinced of the view that banking stocks – with their high business model exposure to factors such as interest rates, which are beyond their direct control, as well as substantial regulatory pressures and competitive threats from innovative fintech start-ups – are unattractive compounders of capital over the long run.

The share price weakness in some of the Sub-Fund's industrial engineers appeared to lead to a disconnect from the true long-term fundamental value of the businesses. This was highlighted by a private equity takeover approach for Spectris (+57%) at an 85% premium to the prevailing share price, with a rival private equity bidder also preparing an offer.

Alpha Group (+37%) was also a beneficiary of takeover interest, this time from US payments company Corpay Inc. After initially rejecting a preliminary cash proposal (at an undisclosed level), its board of directors subsequently said it had held 'constructive' talks with Corpay and sought an extension to the Takeover Panel's 'put up or shut up' (PUSU) deadline until the second week of July.

Of those holdings to move higher on the strength of trading, Mortgage Advice Bureau (+47%) was one of the largest gainers. A May AGM statement from the company revealed strong Q1 completions, a 3% rise in mainstream advisers to 2,003 and guidance that refinancing volumes will accelerate as 2020–21 five-year fixes mature. Management said trading “continues to be in line with expectations” and they were “pleased with our performance so far in 2025”.

Everplay group (+45%), formerly Team 17, also rallied significantly following a full-year trading update indicating that both revenue and adjusted earnings were expected to slightly exceed market expectations. The video game specialist noted that strong performance in the second half of the year was driven by robust sales from new releases and a solid back catalogue, with momentum continuing into January after a strong Christmas trading period.

Fevertree Drinks (+40%) moved higher after releasing robust 2024 results and agreeing a strategic partnership with Molson Coors to accelerate US growth. It also maintained its 2025 guidance – low-single digit revenue growth – in what it sees as a transitional year ahead of stronger medium-term growth.

The Sub-Fund's largest detractor over the six months was RWS Holdings (-47%). This has been a long-standing holding within the Economic Advantage funds (>15 year holding period) and for much of this time was a strong organic growth compounder, with particular IP strengths in patent and complex technical translations for industries such as life sciences, a global footprint (enabling it to serve large enterprise clients) and long-term, embedded customer relationships.

In more recent years it has suffered not only from the extreme valuation compression associated with AIM-listed small cap businesses and from short term cyclical demand pressures on end customer budgets, but critically also from significant longer-term structural questions over its relevance (and importantly its business model and pricing power) in a world where translation is increasingly AI-enabled, if not AI-executed. Our prevailing team view had been that the extreme low valuation (>25% free cash flow yield for much of the past few years) already reflected a substantial amount of this longer-term uncertainty, and that such structural concerns would take years to play out and were over-done in the short term.

However, a trading update in April catalysed a re-appraisal of the pace at which the company's competitive advantage might be under threat. References to “specific challenges with two large clients in relation to changes to delivery models and content types”, with associated gross margin impact, led to a substantial profit downgrade for the year, and strengthened the case against continuing to hold on to the shares. We therefore completed a full exit in June.

A profit warning from Bunzl (-28%) caught investors completely off guard, coming from a company with a long track record of forecasting reliability. The warning stemmed from operational issues within its large US foodservice subsidiary, compounded by softness in the backdrop thanks to macro uncertainty, prompting a ~10% downgrade. The share price fall brought the stock's valuation to a level not seen since the global financial crisis, and after a reassuring meeting with management, we remain confident in the position and have topped up our holding.

Gamma Communications (-25%), the provider of cloud-based enterprise communications, completed a transfer from the junior AIM market to the London Stock Exchange Main Market in May, a move befitting its size (current market cap over £1 billion). An overhang from inheritance tax (IHT) investors seems to have weighed on the shares due to the loss of tax relief status when the shares move to the main market. However, following the move, greater liquidity and investor interest is likely to catalyse a reversal of this dynamic, particularly as the company's size has earned it a place in the FTSE250 mid-cap index.

GlobalData (-26%) also announced its decision to move from AIM to the Main Market later this year, though the bigger story of the period for the shares was the emergence of potential bid interest from two separate private equity firms (KKR and ICG). Ultimately, both parties walked away as GlobalData rebuffed these unsolicited approaches and backed themselves to deliver superior shareholder value over the medium to long term.

Likewise, it was also pleasing to see Craneware (+1.2%) successfully stand firm in the face of opportunistic private equity interest – this time from Bain Capital, despite the high mooted premium (approximately 39% above the undisturbed share price prior to bid rumours emerging).

Portfolio Changes

Low UK share valuations – by both international and historic standards – have led to inbound takeover interest being a constant theme in recent years, with private equity and corporate acquirers keen to exploit the opportunity. The Sub-Fund's holding in Learning Technologies was the latest to exit the portfolio due to a takeover.

The position in RWS Holdings was also sold, for the reasons outlined earlier.

Liontrust GF Special Situations Fund

Outlook

We believe several factors are aligning to create a more supportive environment for UK equities, particularly quality growth names in the small and mid-cap space. While the share price gains seen at the end of the six-month period represent but a fractional reversal of the extreme de-rating across the smaller company segment of the portfolio over the past few years, it is nevertheless cheering to see signs of life emerging.

We have consistently sought to emphasise that despite the brutal underperformance of mid and small caps since the end of 2021 relative to their large cap peers, the Sub-Fund remains resolute in its conviction that such companies retain their highly attractive growth compounding potential over the longer term. It has maintained its exposure so that our investors may benefit when the cycle finally turns again in favour of smaller companies.

Anecdotally, the modest improvement in the unloved small cap segment of the market in the final weeks of the period seemed to mark a shift in momentum. We are seeing a broadening increase in buying interest across many of the Sub-Fund's AIM companies and we are optimistic that this represents capital starting to return to the market, attracted by the significant valuation and implied investment return opportunity. In the meantime, we feel strongly that returns will continue to be supported by ongoing M&A, buyback activity and – most importantly – resilient earnings growth compounding from our companies.

Importantly, the portfolio's companies continue to display all of the hallmarks of quality that have underpinned strong long-term alpha generation from portfolios managed by the Economic Advantage team. The team retains its long-held conviction that the companies in the portfolio can continue to compound growth and deliver attractive returns to shareholders for many years to come.

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The FTSE All-Share Index returned 9.1% in the six months to 30 June 2025.

Mounting geopolitical instability and uncertainty over US trade policy defined the market environment over the first half of 2025. This uncertainty peaked in April after sweeping tariffs announced by President Trump, dubbed 'Liberation Day', sent shockwaves through global markets.

Investor sentiment subsequently recovered on signs of a softening approach from the US administration, including a 90-day delay on tariffs for non-retaliatory countries, which allowed markets to rebound strongly in May and make further modest gains in June.

Trump's approach to the Ukrainian conflict included calling for a swift end to the war, criticising President Zelensky and indicating an unwillingness to continue financial and military assistance. As a result, investors factored in higher expectations of military spending in Europe from governments attempting to fill the void and deter Russian aggression – leading to a sharp rally in defence sector stocks.

Market dynamics shifted alongside investor sentiment, with large-caps and defensive areas holding up best through to the market's trough in early April, before small and mid-caps led the rebound.

The Sub-Fund

The Sub-Fund's C3 Sterling Accumulating Class returned 1.6%* in the six months to 30 June 2025.

The Sub-Fund exhibits a strong bias towards the quality style factor as a result of the investment process, which targets companies with enduring competitive advantage stemming from intangible asset strengths, resulting in high cash flow returns on capital. However, value style characteristics outperformed quality and growth in the period: the MSCI UK Value Index rose 9.8% and the MSCI UK Growth Index returned 7.8%, compared with the MSCI UK Quality Index's 4.8% return.

Within the traditional value sectors, banks extended their run of very strong performance, a trend worth highlighting given the portfolio has zero exposure to the sector. The FTSE All Share banks sub-sector delivered a gain of 24%. The managers remain convinced of the view that banking stocks – with their high business model exposure to factors such as interest rates, which are beyond their direct control, as well as substantial regulatory pressures and competitive threats from innovative fintech start-ups – are unattractive compounders of capital over the long run.

Negative sector attribution also accrued from the Sub-Fund's longstanding overweight in the industrials sector (currently ~13%), favoured for its companies' strong intellectual property, global distribution reach, and robust, though somewhat cyclical, cash flow returns on invested capital. Industrials bore the brunt of the tariff uncertainty, with constituent names exposed to a broad-based sell-off as investors digested the implications of both direct tariff exposure and potential second-order effects on global economic growth.

As the Sub-Fund's holdings in the sector are generally comprised of businesses with broad global footprints (lending a degree of flexibility in terms of optimising manufacturing and distribution) and strong pricing power, we feel that the first-order effects of tariffs on our companies' trading are well-contained. However, it is impossible to predict any secondary effects stemming from weaker global growth and this wider uncertainty weighed on sentiment in the immediate aftermath of the tariff announcements.

The share price weakness in some of the Sub-Fund's industrial engineers appeared to lead to a disconnect from the true long-term fundamental value of the businesses. This was highlighted by a private equity takeover approach for Spectris (+57%) at an 85% premium to the prevailing share price, with a rival private equity bidder also preparing an offer.

The read across from the bid interest helped lift shares in fellow engineers such as Halma (+19%), and IMI (+16%).

These businesses also issued investor updates which were positively received: IMI released an in-line quarterly trading update and announced a strategic review, with its transport division – responsible for 8% of 2024 sales – under consideration for options such as a sale; and Halma commented that trading since April has been strong, with order intake ahead of revenue and last year's level.

Liontrust GF UK Growth Fund

Smiths Group (+32%) also outperformed the industrials sector after announcing plans to streamline its operations by concentrating on high-performance industrial technologies while divesting non-core business units. The decision came shortly after the publication of an activist shareholder letter calling for a reconsideration of the group structure. The company is also enhancing its share buyback program to £500 million. A quarterly trading update upgraded full-year organic revenue growth guidance toward the top end of its existing 6% to 8% growth range.

The Sub-Fund's top contributor over the six months was aerospace and defence group BAE Systems (+66%), which rallied strongly alongside the wider defence sector due to the outlook for higher defence spending across Europe and other regions. The company reconfirmed guidance for 7% to 9% sales growth this year and commented on a supportive demand backdrop.

One of the Sub-Fund's largest detractors over the six months was RWS Holdings (-47%). This has been a long-standing holding within the EA funds (>15 year holding period) and for much of this time was a strong organic growth compounder, with particular IP strengths in patent and complex technical translations for industries such as life sciences, a global footprint (enabling it to serve large enterprise clients) and long-term, embedded customer relationships.

In more recent years it has suffered not only from the extreme valuation compression associated with AIM-listed small cap businesses and from short term cyclical demand pressures on end customer budgets, but critically also from significant longer-term structural questions over its relevance (and importantly its business model and pricing power) in a world where translation is increasingly AI-enabled, if not AI-executed. Our prevailing team view had been that the extreme low valuation (>25% free cash flow yield for much of the past few years) already reflected a substantial amount of this longer-term uncertainty, and that such structural concerns would take years to play out and were overdone in the short term.

However, a trading update in April catalysed a re-appraisal of the pace at which the company's competitive advantage might be under threat. References to "specific challenges with two large clients in relation to changes to delivery models and content types", with associated gross margin impact, led to a substantial profit downgrade for the year, and strengthened the case against continuing to hold on to the shares. We therefore completed a full exit in June.

A profit warning from Bunzl (-28%) caught investors completely off guard, coming from a company with a long track record of forecasting reliability. The warning stemmed from operational issues within its large US foodservice subsidiary, compounded by softness in the backdrop thanks to macro uncertainty, prompting a ~10% downgrade. The share price fall brought the stock's valuation to a level not seen since the global financial crisis, and after a reassuring meeting with management, we remain confident in the position and have topped up our holding.

Diageo (-27%) also detracted after dropping its medium-term 5% to 7% net sales growth target due to the impact of macroeconomic and geopolitical uncertainty on demand recovery in its key markets.

While recent market trends have been tough for relative portfolio performance, there is mounting potential for outperformance from some of the more unloved areas of the market as and when sentiment recovers and valuations revert towards long-term averages.

Portfolio Changes

British American Tobacco exited the portfolio. The managers believe that over time, the company's competitive advantage is likely to be eroded as it executes a business shift from legacy combustible products towards smokeless products such as vapes, where competition from areas such as China is fierce. The position was actively sold down over several months as the stock's extreme undervaluation versus peers reduced over 2024.

Indivior was sold due to the company's decision to cancel its London secondary listing, after moving its primary listing to the US last year. As the Sub-Fund only invests in domestically listed companies, the decision catalysed the Sub-Fund's exit from the holding.

The position in RWS Holdings was also sold, for the reasons outlined earlier.

Two new holdings were added to the portfolio: Integrafina and GlobalData.

Integrafina owns the Transact B2B investment wrap platform, one of the largest in the UK. It has consistently aimed to differentiate itself via high levels of client service, engendering deep and loyal relationships with its independent financial advisory clients, as well as the ownership of its own proprietary technology. The decision to invest in proprietary technology is in contrast to almost all of Transact's competitors, which mainly utilise third party offerings, but it is one which Integrafina believes is key to being able to shape the development of the platform to best suit customer needs. With high levels of recurring fee income, the business model is robust, while the company has a current cash flow return on invested capital of 16.6% - very comfortably ahead of both its own cost of capital and the wider market average.

GlobalData had been the subject of potential takeover interest from two separate private equity firms earlier in the year. One (KKR) had already walked away, but GlobalData announced in June that it had terminated discussions with the second (ICG). Having held the shares in other Economic Advantage funds for many years, the Liontrust UK Growth Sub-Fund took the opportunity of the negative share price move on the news to initiate a starting position. While the initial position is small, cognisant of uncertainty in the backdrop and potential pressure on client budgets in the short term, longer term we feel this is a business rich in the intellectual capital assets our investment process seeks out.

GlobalData is a provider of business-critical research, data and analytics to over 4800 clients across 20 sectors globally. It has significant depth of intellectual property, claiming ownership of hundreds of unique proprietary datasets, augmented by in-depth proprietary research and analysis, delivered from a single software platform.

Outlook

The Sub-Fund's companies continue to display all the hallmarks of quality that have underpinned strong long-term alpha generation from portfolios managed by the Economic Advantage team. The team retains its long-held conviction that the companies in the portfolio can continue to compound growth and deliver attractive returns to shareholders for many years to come.

Valuation is not the primary driver of long-term equity returns for a style like ours, but it can be a very significant factor in the short term – and that short term opportunity for a pronounced re-rating boost looks particularly compelling at the current juncture, with a high proportion of companies trading at material discounts to their long run average valuation rating.

In the meantime, we feel strongly that returns will continue to be supported by ongoing M&A, buyback activity and – most importantly – resilient earnings growth compounding from our companies.

Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The MSCI Europe Small Cap Index returned 11.5% in euro terms in the six months to 30 June 2025.

European markets displayed relative resilience in the face of volatility stemming from the US. In a reversal of the prevailing trend in recent years, US markets lagged Europe – initially due to US technology mega-caps suffering a correction following disruptive AI advancements from China's DeepSeek.

Markets then experienced a profound exogenous shock in early April in the form of the tariff policy unveiled by the Trump administration. Recurring threats of sweeping tariffs had cast a persistent shadow over markets during the first quarter, but the scale of levies announced on April 2nd ("Liberation Day") exceeded investors' fears.

However, the Trump administration quickly started to ease its stance on the level of tariffs or at least announce a pause, and global equity markets rallied strongly through to the year's half-way point.

European market gains were also supported by the prospect of significant extra fiscal stimulus in the region. A threat by Trump to remove military and financial support to Ukraine saw European governments react by stepping up defence spending plans – none more so than Germany, which eased fiscal rules in order to unleash a huge defence and infrastructure spending programme.

Financials (+23%) was the strongest sector in the MSCI Europe Index, followed by utilities (+22%), communications services (+19%) and industrials (+18%), while the only areas in negative territory in euro terms were consumer discretionary (-7.0%) and healthcare (-4.3%).

Analysis of Portfolio Return

The Sub-Fund's Class A3 Euro Accumulating (Institutional) shares returned 10.8% in the six months to 30 June 2025.*

Despite the European Central Bank cutting rates eight times since June 2024, European banks continued to perform well, with ongoing momentum in net interest income and earnings growth.

Our investment framework has long recognised that the European banking sector is structurally healthier than it was in the wake of the global financial crisis. Valuations remain attractive relative to earnings power, with some institutions still trading at discounts to book value. Balance sheets are stronger, non-performing loans are low, and many banks are now generating surplus capital. These dynamics are encouraging for shareholders, with the potential for higher cash returns through dividends and buybacks in the years ahead.

Bankinter (+48%), BPER Banca (+33%) and Ringkjøbing Landobank (+16%) were all among the Sub-Fund's top 10 performance contributors over the six months.

Serco (+31%), the international provider of government services, rose over the six months after it reported on strong trading. A June trading update commented on solid organic revenue growth of 2% in the first half of 2025, a high level of contract awards at £3bn, and upgraded its full-year outlook driven by higher-than-anticipated activity in the immigration sector. Revenue guidance was raised from around £4.8 billion to £4.9 billion.

Betsson (+45%) was another portfolio highlight. The online betting group grew Q1 revenue 18% year-over-year to €294 million. Growth was broad-based, with casino revenue up 18% and sportsbook revenue climbing 22%, supported by an improved sportsbook margin of 8.0%, compared to 6.6% a year earlier.

Turning to the weaker positions, shares in 4imprint (-36%) weakened after soft trading in the first two months of 2025 prompted it to issue cautious outlook comments. The marketer of promotional merchandise noted that order intake was down on the prior year comparable, with the potential impact of trade tariffs casting a shadow across the demand outlook for the rest of the year.

Greggs (-25%) also dropped on evidence of a slowdown in trading. While 2024 sales rose 11% overall and 5.5% on a like-for-like basis, this included a deceleration in Q4 to 2.5% like-for-like growth as subdued consumer confidence weigh on customer visits and spend. Although Greggs commented that 2024 profit targets had still been met, this relied on cost control measures.

Gamma Communications (-27%), the B2B communications group, slid as it noted that while 2025 trading in continental Europe had begun positively, UK market conditions have softened – leading Gamma to initiate some cost-cutting measures.

Portfolio Activity

Changes to the Sub-Fund's portfolio of holdings are driven by our annual review of companies' reports and accounts. This in-depth quantitative and qualitative review is core to the Cashflow Solution investment process. It involves the forensic analysis of historic cash flows and balance sheet developments.

We apply a simple quantitative screen using two measures of cash flow to create a composite ranking of the European universe of companies, with only the top 20% – the Cashflow Champions watchlist – qualifying for further qualitative analysis.

We then aim to pick the very best investments from within the watchlist by categorising stocks according to secondary scores. We also apply a set of key proprietary indicators. These allow us to designate the prevailing market regime and, in turn, optimise portfolio construction by emphasising different secondary scores within stock selection in order to target growth or value exposure.

Mindful of the market turbulence seen earlier in the year, we implemented selective portfolio changes as part of the annual review process, maintaining a focus on attractive cash flow stocks which provide a balanced portfolio style profile across growth, value or quality.

Outlook

At the current time, and despite the volatility seen during the first six months of 2025, our assessment of the European outlook remains stable and positive: valuations are reasonably attractive, stockmarkets remain in an uptrend, and there is little sign of the kind of poor corporate investment that would lead us to be more cautious.

Despite their strong performance, Europe's best cash flow stocks are still inexpensive. Our analysis shows the constituents of the Cashflow Champions watchlist have rallied strongly from their very low valuations a few months ago but remain cheap versus history.

From a style perspective, our indicators continue to point to a balanced portfolio by style, i.e. some exposure to quality, growth and value. In the event of a return to geo-political or economic related volatility, in the medium term we would expect our investment process to take advantage of any significant market dislocation and subsequent opportunities that may arise.

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar shares returned 3.6%* in US dollar terms the six months to 30 June 2025.

The average return from the EAA Fund Global Flexible Bond (Morningstar) sector, the Sub-Fund's reference sector, was 3.5%.

The first half of 2025 was dominated by the intensifying drama of US tariff policy. President Trump's unilateral escalation of import tariffs, culminating in the self-declared "Liberation Day" package, sent shockwaves through financial markets in April.

While intended as a mechanism for trade rebalancing, these tariffs are functionally a domestic tax on US consumers and represent a serious drag on global growth, given the US consumer's centrality to global demand. The inflationary impact is expected to be a one-off rise in prices; there would only be persistence if wage pressures responded. The risk of a broader inflationary impulse lies in the strength of the labour market, which, although weakening, still holds the key to whether tariff-driven price increases will bleed into services inflation. The Federal Reserve (Fed) maintained a consistent "wait and see" posture throughout the first half of the year, leaving rates unchanged in its 4.25%–4.50% range. The Fed's Summary of Economic Projections (SEP) in June continued to show two rate cuts in 2025 as the median forecast, but with growing division among Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) members. Chair Powell emphasised that these projections are tentative and data-driven, stressing that any judgment on the durability of the tariff-driven inflationary impulse would require more evidence.

Despite pressure from President Trump, including hostile social media posts targeting Powell, the Fed signalled no shift toward political accommodation. In fact, market pricing and the Fed's current stance remain largely aligned, with the next cut expected around September or October. However, the underlying trigger for cuts remains tied to labour market weakness rather than political commentary.

The Bank of England cut rates by 25 basis points (bps) in February and May, before holding steady at 4.25% in June. The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) remains anchored to its "gradual and careful" approach, interpreted by markets as signalling one rate cut per quarter.

The European Central Bank (ECB) delivered four 25bps cuts, taking its deposit rate to 2.0%, but offered a nuanced message that balanced dovish gestures with hawkish caveats. President Lagarde noted that the ECB is now "well positioned" to navigate the evolving landscape, and emphasised that monetary policy is nearing the end of its post-shock normalisation cycle. Market participants interpreted the decision as leaving room for one more cut later in 2025.

The most significant development in Europe was regarding the fiscal side of the equation. It was widely anticipated that after the German elections on 23rd February there would be some easing of the debt brake. Rather than an easing, Chancellor-elect Merz of the CDU chose to get out the proverbial fiscal bazooka. Partly this was in recognition of the recent changing political landscape and the need for Europe to be able to unilaterally defend itself in a more polarised world where the US cannot presently be relied on (in fairness to the US and Trump, most of the rest of the Western world has had a few decades of free ride from America's dominance and been able to take advantage of the "peace dividend"). Merz had a deliberate use of the English language, saying "whatever it takes" in an echo of Draghi's response to the Eurozone sovereign bond crisis.

There are obstacles to this all being delivered over the coming years, but in principle this fiscal package is seismic in nature. There is a signalling impact to the rest of Europe from the nation that traditionally has blocked large spending plans, a strong commitment to strengthen the German military, and a huge fiscal boost from one of the few countries that can easily afford it.

The bond markets continued to grapple with the fallout from trade tensions and rising US fiscal concerns. US Treasury market volatility surged in April, partly due to the unwinding of highly leveraged "basis trades," arbitrage positions exposed to large margin calls amid spikes in volatility. With total estimated exposure of around $1 trillion, the systemic risk of this activity became temporarily visible, contributing to a steepening of the yield curve.

Yield curve steepening was a theme during the second quarter due to the aforementioned fears about US central bank independence and broader fiscal sustainability. Bond vigilantes, those market participants who demand higher yields to fund government excesses, appeared to stir from a long slumber. The implied message from markets was clear: any threats to Federal Reserve independence or lack of fiscal discipline will be met with higher yields and tighter financial conditions.

The first half of 2025 underscored the complexity of the current macroeconomic environment. The intersection of trade policy, legal ambiguity, central bank credibility, fiscal strain and geopolitical instability is shaping a precarious path for markets and policymakers alike. For now, the consensus trajectory among major central banks is toward cautious, data-dependent rate cuts, but with a high bar for acceleration. The labour market, particularly in the US and UK, remains the critical channel through which short-term price shocks might either dissipate or become entrenched. With volatility heightened and policy signals blurred by politics, investors should brace for an extended period of uncertainty and be wary of extrapolating short-term moves into long-term trends.

The Sub-Fund is constructed as a portfolio of interacting risk positions with alpha anticipated to arise from sources in: Rates, Allocation and Selection:

Rates

The Sub-Fund started the year with 7.5 years of duration. This was trimmed to 6.3 years by the end of June; we still want to maintain a strategic long duration but, with plenty of volatility around, tactical trimming seemed prudent. The geographic split is 3.1 years in the US, 1.3 years in the Eurozone, and 1.9 years in the UK.

We also changed yield curve and cross-market positioning. The Sub-Fund purchased US 30-year bond futures. This is the first purchase in the 15+ year maturity bucket for a couple of years. Furthermore, the Sub-Fund has also taken exposure to the long end of the UK, buying 2054 maturity gilts and selling German 10 year Bund futures.

We believe that the yield curve has steepened enough now to justify some exposure in the Sub-Fund. With a total 15+ years maturity bucket exposure of 1.2 years the Sub-Fund is still underweight relative to indices but no longer has zero exposure.

Allocation and Selection

Credit spreads remain expensive by historic standards; the Sub-Fund retains a large capacity to buy during any correction. The exposure is 56% in investment grade and 7% in high yield compared to neutral levels of 50% and 20% respectively. Credit fundamentals remain robust; we are just awaiting a better valuation opportunity to increase exposure.

The Sub-Fund had gone long risk (sold protection) on the iTraxx Europe and short risk on the iTraxx senior financials as a cheap way of buying insurance against any deterioration in market sentiment. The volatility in markets caused by Trump's tariffs caused a differential to widen and the position was closed out at a differential of 8.8bps. This generated the Sub-Fund a profit of just over 8bps, or saved the Sub-Fund money in a spread widening environment, depending on how you prefer to phrase these things. By the end of April, the differential between the two CDS indices was approaching levels where we would look to instigate the trade again.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future European Corporate Bond Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Sub-Fund Review

The Sub-Fund's Class A5 Euro Accumulating (Hedged) shares returned 1.6%* in euro terms over the period, compared with the 1.8%* return from the Markit iBoxx Euro Corporates Index comparator benchmark.

The first half of 2025 was defined by heightened geopolitical tensions, aggressive policy shifts, and persistent macroeconomic uncertainty. In Q1, markets reacted sharply to the new US administration's policy agenda, which included a series of tariff announcements and proposals that unsettled investors and raised recessionary fears. Global fixed income markets experienced a coordinated sell-off early in the year, but US Treasuries later outperformed as risk-off sentiment intensified. The US 10-year yield fell nearly 40 basis points, while inflation expectations climbed amid tariff uncertainty. Consumer confidence weakened to its lowest since early 2021.

The UK broadly mirrored US market movements, with fiscal risks remaining central. The Spring Statement rebuilt fiscal headroom through welfare cuts and defence reallocations, but the Office for Budget Responsibility projected only 1% growth for 2025 and expressed doubts over productivity assumptions. Tariff risks were excluded from its base case, though full implementation could significantly reduce GDP. Gilt markets responded positively to a revised issuance remit, though long-term fiscal consolidation remains likely. In the Eurozone, the policy response included significant fiscal initiatives, notably Germany's proposals for defence and infrastructure spending that surprised markets and pushed Bund yields higher. The ECB supported growth with two rate cuts, while endorsing Germany's stimulus approach.

Q2 continued to reflect the interplay between trade tensions, geopolitical flashpoints and fiscal risks. The quarter began with another round of sweeping US tariffs, prompting volatility before a 90-day pause calmed markets. Economic indicators were mixed, with consumer and business sentiment weakening, yet temporary trade resolutions offered some stability. Fiscal concerns resurfaced in May as US tax and spending plans rattled sovereign yields, while the Fed maintained rates at 4.25–4.5% amid political pressure to accelerate cuts. In the UK, weak early-quarter PMIs and easing inflation drove gilt yields lower and prompted a BoE rate cut, although the decision revealed divisions within the committee. Labour market softening and persistent services inflation led the BoE to hold rates steady in June. Europe followed a similar pattern, with early-quarter ECB cuts supporting Bunds and compressing spreads, before renewed tariff rhetoric pushed yields higher. Despite downside inflation surprises, rising budget spending in Germany fuelled fiscal concerns and hinted at nearing an end to the easing cycle.

Duration

The Sub-Fund maintained an overweight duration position, initially at +0.75 years, with exposure concentrated in Germany and the UK. Rising Bund yields, which climbed more than 35 basis points amid expectations of increased government issuance, weighed on returns from the German allocation. Despite this, the position was maintained in anticipation that economic weakness would eventually lead to further rate cuts. UK gilts also saw yields rise by around 10 basis points, yet the Sub-Fund retained its overweight, expecting yields to decline faster than the market projected.

As the period progressed, a rally in 10-year gilts to 4.40% prompted a reduction of 0.25 years in the UK allocation, bringing the overall overweight down to +0.50 years and evenly distributing exposure between the two markets. This recalibration aligned positioning with market movements and supported performance, which ultimately tracked broadly in line with the benchmark over the half-year.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future European Corporate Bond Fund Investment Adviser's Report (Continued)

Credit

Over the first half of the year, credit positioning improved, driven by consistent support from the Sub-Fund's overweight to spread duration and evolving sector dynamics. European credit spreads tightened throughout the period, providing a favourable backdrop for performance.

During this time, the Sub-Fund's overweight spread duration consistently added value as spreads narrowed, reaching their tightest levels in over two years by the end of H1. Sector allocation contributed positively, with strong results from banks and insurance in particular.

Defensive utilities, notably Severn Trent, delivered strong positive contributions, supported by regulatory advantages and resilience to market volatility. Similarly, Vonovia outperformed peers due to its proactive environmental strategies and commitment to net-neutral housing. These sustainability-focused names helped offset some of the losses from weaker selections in other areas, leaving the Sub-Fund well positioned through tightening spreads and evolving sector trends over the half-year.

Trades

Trading activity in the first half of 2025 was characterised by a balanced approach to risk management, with reductions during periods of tight valuations and selective additions when opportunities arose from new issuance.

Throughout H1, the Sub-Fund actively managed spread duration and sector exposures to navigate shifting market conditions. Early in the year, opportunistic trades gave way to caution as geopolitical uncertainty grew and issuers pulled back from the market. The Sub-Fund reduced spread duration by switching Zurich into a shorter maturity and disposed of GlaxoSmithKline, where tight valuations offered little pickup over government bonds. New positions were added selectively, including Severn Trent, offering safer sector exposure amid regulatory change, funded by reducing Veolia, and the Climate Investment Fund, providing sovereign-like risk with yield pickup and supporting low-carbon technologies, funded from gilts.

As market conditions improved in Q2, trading activity intensified. Alphabet was added at attractive levels during a bout of market volatility, followed by new issues from Roche, Visa, and NatWest Group. Within financials, profits were realized on Generali, with proceeds rotated into other preferred names, while relative value was enhanced through capital structure switches between Credit Agricole and Société Générale with minimal spread impact. Following spread compression after the "Liberation Day" volatility, the Sub-Fund again trimmed risk to secure gains against a backdrop of continued fiscal uncertainty.

Outlook

We remain reasonably constructive on the outlook for corporate bonds based on attractive all-in yields and the carry from spread currently on offer. We are cognisant of the tightening we have seen over from the wide spreads over the last couple of years, and as such have been taking opportunities to increase credit quality and reduce spread duration. Recent political developments and trade policies have led to a decompression in spreads and have caused volatility in the markets. We think that many of our high-quality corporates have solid fundamentals, and may take the opportunity to add to credit exposure again on any further repricing, but remain wary of the volatile backdrop.

There has been a moderation in overall credit fundamentals, such as interest cover metrics, as the increasing all-in cost of new financing has resulted in an upward trend in blended funding costs and a corresponding reduction in interest cover. Leverage has returned to long run averages, reflecting an increase in debt levels alongside lower EBITDA growth, due to a combination of lower revenue growth and rising costs. However, both of these metrics remain at healthy levels.

We think therefore that additional performance will be generated from credit selection, an area where we have delivered outperformance over recent years. We are exposed to high quality names that on a relative basis offer attractive value and good exposure to the asset class. This is reflected in our overweight positioning to financials through both the banks and insurance sectors, and our overweight in telcos which we view as a high-quality resilient sector. We expect there to be potential for additional capital upside from declining government bond yields and the Sub-Fund retains its long interest rate position.

Outlook (continued)

Credit spreads have tightened over the first half of 2024, primarily due to supportive fundamentals and technical factors which have supported markets so far this year. Although further spread tightening potential is more limited at these levels, progress on inflation and a lowering of rates should ongoing support for corporate credit.

We therefore believe that current spreads offer sufficient compensation for fundamental risk, with all-in yields above 4.0%, and investment-grade credit offering an attractive return profile given our outlook for both the asset class and the broader economy.

Liontrust GF High Yield Bond Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

The Sub-Fund's Class C5 Accumulating Sterling (Hedged) shares returned 4.7%* in sterling terms in the six months to 30 June 2025 while the ICE Bank of America Merrill Lynch Global High Yield Index (GBP hedged) comparator benchmark returned 4.4% and the average return for the IA Sterling High Yield reference sector was 3.4%. The primary B5 US dollar share class returned 4.9% while the ICE Bank of America Merrill Lynch Global High Yield Index (USD hedged) comparator benchmark returned 4.4% and the average return for the EAA Fund USD High Yield Bond (Morningstar) reference sector was 5.2%.

We also compare the Sub-Fund's performance to a leading Global High Yield ETF (seeking to outperform by 1.5% a year). The Sub-Fund's C5 sterling shares class return was one percentage point ahead of the ETF over the period and has now outperformed by eight percentage points since inception (June 2018).

The global high yield market returned 4.4% (US dollar terms) in the first half of 2025. The US high yield market produced a 4.6% return. In Europe, the high yield market returned 3.7%. BBs were best performing part of the market by rating at 4.7%, ahead of single Bs at 4.1%, and CCCs at 3.0%.

We saw a shake-up in spreads offered in the high yield market on the back of Trump tariff headlines and speculation. Cyclical sectors like autos took a hit as the market was worried about the level of tariffs and the domino effect it would have across the supply chain, right through to the end product. There were some sectors impacted more than others, but we took advantage of what we deemed as some mis-pricing where bonds were sold down but fundamentals remained solid and spreads attractive, particularly in US dollar issues.

After those turbulent few weeks, the market started to absorb the headlines and hope was restored that the tariffs wouldn't be as bad as the market had originally thought. The global high yield market retraced its initial move down and is back to the tighter spreads we saw before 'Liberation Day'. The Sub-Fund has a good level of cash to take advantage of any investment opportunity that might present itself in a softer market should tariff volatility return.

Given the uncertain macroeconomic backdrop, many investors have taken the flight to quality and invested in the higher quality parts of the high yield spectrum. This benefitted our strategy as this is the part of the market we are already exposed to and continues to be our sweet spot.

There were two notable positive credit stories amongst our holdings. Worldpay, a payment tech business, is being acquired by an investment grade rated company called Global Payments. As it is a strong conviction trade, we hold a concentrated position within the Sub-Fund and benefited from a three-point pop in the bond price on the back of this news. We have chosen to hold the position rather than take profit as we are being paid an attractive coupon and will reassess as we get closer to the closing date of the transaction.

The other positive credit story is related to Chart Industries, a global manufacturer of engineered equipment servicing multiple market applications in energy and industrial gas. As the business is more on the cyclical side we hold a modest position in the Sub-Fund. The investment grade-rated company, Flowserve, announced an agreement to merge with Chart Industries, in a deal which is expected to close at the end of the year. The combination would address an entire life cycle for customers, from design through to aftermarket support. The latter has grown in recent years, offering sticky customer relationships and higher margins; the rating agencies have taken the news positively and bond ratings have been put on positive outlook.

We participated in a handful of new issues in both the US and European markets across the BB and B space. Amongst the new credits added to the portfolio, we invested in building products company, QXO, Wolseley, Currenta Group and Urbaser. The rest of the credits were companies we were already familiar with or currently own in the portfolio (hence, already comforted by the company fundamentals). The rest of the portfolio activity was centred around investing cash from fund inflows across existing holdings, ideas from our watchlist and also in bonds that had been beaten up (disproportionally, in our view) post tariff-related headlines. Our focus on idiosyncratic risk and the stock-picking choices we made all contributed to our positive performance this quarter.

It is also worth noting the growth in the Sub-Fund during the period, with assets now above $200m.

Outlook

On the macro side, the market is thinking about the likelihood of a rate cut in the US by the end of the year. The focus has been on data releases which are currently indicating a more resilient economy than the market expected, giving less of a motive for the Fed to cut rates.

Defaults in the high yield market remain low and below historical averages; we have seen a few isolated cases of distressed exchanges and restructuring. The level of defaults is increasing (skewed by a small number of specific companies) but at a very modest pace, broadly indicating that high yield company balance sheets are in good shape and have been resilient facing current headwinds. The primary market has been open but fairly quiet till the latter part of the second quarter. In recent weeks, primary issuance has ramped up across BB and B rating categories – most of the deals have been to refinance existing debt but we have come across a handful of deals which include the funding of shareholder distributions, something we find fairly aggressive. The deals were successfully done, at relatively tight spreads not offering much of a new issue premium in some cases. This demonstrates how the demand for high yield bonds is strong, how companies are taking advantage of issuing bonds at favourable levels and how the high yield market overall is well supported by this positive technical. It is external 'noise' that is likely to be the cause of short-term spread widening.

We take a longer-term view in investments in our portfolio and therefore are invested in companies that we believe can withstand bouts of market volatility and achieve a good level of return. We run a concentrated portfolio, where our position size reflects our level of conviction, we are index agnostic and our process means we are primarily invested in higher quality credits. The yield offered on the Sub-Fund is 7.1%, which we believe is highly attractive from a risk/reward standpoint.

Yield curve steepening was a theme during the second quarter due to the aforementioned fears about US central bank independence and broader fiscal sustainability. Bond vigilantes, those market participants who demand higher yields to fund government excesses, appeared to stir from a long slumber. The implied message from markets was clear: any threats to Federal Reserve independence or lack of fiscal discipline will be met with higher yields and tighter financial conditions.

The first half of 2025 underscored the complexity of the current macroeconomic environment. The intersection of trade policy, legal ambiguity, central bank credibility, fiscal strain and geopolitical instability is shaping a precarious path for markets and policymakers alike.

For now, the consensus trajectory among major central banks is toward cautious, data-dependent rate cuts, but with a high bar for acceleration. With volatility heightened and policy signals blurred by politics, investors should brace for an extended period of uncertainty and be wary of extrapolating short-term moves into long-term trends.

Carry Component

We split the Sub-Fund into those bonds which qualify for our strict criteria as short dated corporate bonds, namely less than 5 years to legal maturity for bonds issued by corporate issuers and less than 3 years for financial, and three additional performance sources. However, it is worth emphasising we manage the Sub-Fund's positioning and risk in its entirety.

The largest driver of the total return for the Sub-Fund was the yield carry that investing in short-dated corporate bonds naturally provides. In addition to the yield carry, there was incremental performance added across a range of positions in the Sub-Fund.

Alpha Sources:

Rates

The long duration position, relative to our neutral of 1.5 years of exposure, was beneficial with the Sub-Fund spending most of the period with approximately 2.25 years of exposure. Government bond yields at the short-dated end of the market finished the six months close to unchanged; it was the yield carry that created the benefit. Furthermore, we also actively adjusted duration; for example, we took 0.25 years out in late April and added it back in mid-May, creating some alpha for the Sub-Fund.

In late 2024, the Sub-Fund went long UK duration versus German duration; the yield differential narrowed, allowing us to take profits. Another cross-market position was added through a short duration in Canadian bonds via government bond futures, with a corresponding long duration in the US. In just under two weeks the yield differential narrowed from 157bps to 138bps, generating positive performance.

During the second quarter, we believed that the yield curve had steepened too quickly. A curve flattening position was implemented going long US 30-year bond futures and short the same duration equivalent of US 5-year bond futures. Unfortunately, the yield curve continued to steepen and the position hit our 10bps sell discipline level so was closed out.

Allocation

During the fourth quarter of 2024, the Sub-Fund implemented a cross-market allocation position going long European high yield risk via the iTraxx Xover credit default swap (CDS) index and short US high yield risk via the CDX HY credit default swap index. The valuation argument prevailed, with European high yield outperforming its US cousin, in early 2025. We took profits during the first quarter of 2025; the position generated just under 10bps of performance for the Sub-Fund.

In the first quarter we entered into a decompression trade between two European credit default swap indices. We went long risk (sold protection) on the iTraxx Europe, which is the broad 125 name index including some financials, and short risk on the iTraxx senior financials, which is the 30 name pure financials index at the senior attachment point. Within credit, financials tend to be higher beta (they have been since the financial crisis) given the systemic nature of the sector and the high bond index weightings. This cheap insurance against any deterioration in market sentiment proved to be beneficial in the turmoil that followed Trump's Liberation Day pronouncements. The position was closed out a few days later having made a little under ten basis points. Towards the end of May the differential between the two indices had compressed so far again that we have put the position back on.

Selection

Stock selection was a positive contributor to performance during the six months. Within both short-dated credit and other credit, spread movements were subdued. There were several bonds that contributed two basis points of excess return or more, but none more than 5bps.

With the Sub-Fund's assets increasing over the period, we were able to add some new positions to increase diversity in short-dated corporates. This included Carlsberg, Veralto, Nasdaq, Paypal, Investec, Bupa, Aberdeen, Sage, Enel, Phoenix, Visa and Tyco Electronics.

A new investment was also made into legacy capital issued by French bank BNP. We expect the company to tender for the bonds at some stage with a few percentage points of upside when it does. One 10-year maturity bond was also purchased, issued by the company Resolution Life; the bonds are cheap given the impending takeover of the company by higher rated Nippon Life.

Following a review with the Investment Adviser, the Directors of the Company believe the Sub-Fund's strategy and return profile are better suited to a total return objective. This means that the Investment Adviser will seek to provide the Sub-Fund's shareholders with a combination of capital growth and income. To reflect the change in investment objective, the Sub-Fund's name has also changed to Liontrust GF Global Short Dated Corporate Bond Fund. These changes were approved by shareholders at an Extraordinary General Meeting on 16 April 2025, with changes taking effect from 1 May 2025. There was no change to the synthetic risk and reward profile or the summary risk indicator of the Sub-Fund. There were also no material changes to the portfolio of the Sub-Fund as a result of the change.

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class AI Accumulating Euro shares delivered a return of 2.4%* over the period in euro terms, versus the MSCI Europe Index's 8.6% (which is the comparator benchmark).

Eurozone equities delivered a strong performance over the first half of 2025, benefiting from a combination of regional and global factors that supported risk sentiment. The initial rally was sparked in January as investors began rotating out of US large-cap technology stocks following developments surrounding DeepSeek, with Europe emerging as a key beneficiary. Optimism gathered further pace after the German elections, where pro-growth policy signals from the new administration bolstered confidence in cyclical sectors such as construction, engineering, and defence.

Despite intermittent setbacks, most notably the tariff-related volatility in April triggered by the announcement of "Liberation Day", the broader trend remained supportive, with markets finding renewed strength following the temporary suspension and eventual delay of tariffs on European imports. These policy shifts, combined with resilient macroeconomic data, helped extend the eurozone's positive equity trajectory into Q2.

Against this favourable backdrop, the Sub-Fund faced persistent structural challenges stemming from its emphasis on small and mid-cap growth stocks. While the market recovery broadened as the period progressed, performance remained hampered by a pronounced underweight in mega and large-cap equities. Small and mid-cap companies, which comprise the core of the portfolio have lagged since 2022 amid the headwinds of rising interest rates and heightened geopolitical risk.

Nevertheless, we remain confident in our positioning. The portfolio is tilted toward high-quality growth names that align with our sustainable investment themes and that currently trade at attractive valuation discounts relative to historical norms. While recent performance is encouraging, we view it as an early signal of a more meaningful re-rating opportunity in the period ahead.

Spotify continued its strong performance with its Q1 2025 results reflecting robust user and subscriber growth, with monthly active users (MAUs) rising 10% year-over-year to 678 million and premium subscribers increasing 12% to 268 million. Revenue climbed 15% year-over-year to €4.2 billion. However, both earnings per share (EPS) and total revenue came in slightly below analyst expectations. Despite the shortfall, CEO Daniel Ek underscored the platform's resilience amid economic uncertainty and highlighted strong user engagement and retention as key strengths supporting long-term momentum.

Another strong contributor was Topicus.com, a company focused on acquiring, managing, and developing vertical market software businesses, held under our theme of improving the resource efficiency of industrial and agricultural processes.

In its Q1 2025 earnings report, Topicus demonstrated continued momentum in its growth trajectory within the software sector. The company reported a 16% year-over-year increase in revenue, reaching €355.6 million, with organic growth accounting for 4% of this uplift. Net income rose markedly to €38.8 million, reflecting a significant improvement over the same period last year.

Leading the detractors was German sportswear manufacturer Puma with shares falling considerably after it warned that trade uncertainty and geopolitical tensions would weigh on 2025 sales and profits. It expects low-to-mid single-digit currency-adjusted sales growth and EBIT of €445-€525 million – impacted by €75 million in one-off efficiency costs – well below expectations and the €622 million it made last year. Weaker demand in the US and China, driven by constrained consumer budgets and new tariffs, has further dampened the near-term outlook. We are disappointed by the progress Puma's management team has made with the new premiumisation strategy at a time of acute consumer weakness. The CEO has since resigned and been replaced by a seasoned Adidas executive; we look forward to hearing his plans for the company and will review our long-term position with respect to this outlook.

AutoStore, a leading player in warehouse automation, reported a challenging first quarter of 2025, with revenues falling to $86 million – a sharp 48% decline from the previous quarter and down 38% year-over-year. The company attributed this downturn to persistent macroeconomic uncertainty, which continues to weigh on capital investment decisions across its client base.

We decided to exit our position in AutoStore on competition-for-capital grounds. The company is currently undergoing a transition in its business model, but communication around this shift has been limited and unclear. Given the uncertainty surrounding the pace of demand recovery and the evolving model, we chose to reallocate the capital to ICON – a leading Contract Research Organisation (CRO), which experienced a comparable share price decline but presents a more compelling risk-adjusted return profile and a clearer path to recovery.

Novo Nordisk shares posted a sharp drop following more perceived disappointing data for its next-generation diabetes and obesity drug, CagriSema. The company reported weight loss of 15.7% over 68 weeks in patients who adhered to the treatment, but this fell to 13.7% when including all participants – below the ~20% weight loss many investors had anticipated. While this trial disappointed investors, the real-world comparability with main competitor drug Mounjaro remains to be seen. Additionally, the company has a pipeline of new obesity drugs and indication trials coming including Amycretin and the neurological EVOKE trial.

If we step back from the trial data and competition, the obesity and diabetes markets remain vast and growing, with <1% and 10% penetration respectively. This large unmet medical need provides an important runway of growth, with many improvements required on this nascent drug class.

Trading activity

We initiated a position in Asker Healthcare Group, a Scandinavian healthcare distributor aligned with our Providing affordable healthcare theme. Asker leverages scale to reduce procurement costs and improve supply efficiency across hospitals and care providers. To fund this, we sold SAP after nearly a decade of ownership, following a rapid re-rating that exceeded our five-year price target. SAP now returns to our Watchlist for potential re-entry based on valuation.

We exited Trustpilot after strong performance, with shares doubling from our entry point. The decision was driven by asset allocation priorities, shifting capital toward larger-cap opportunities.

We also added Atlas Copco, a global leader in compressor and vacuum technology, under our Improving the efficiency of energy use theme. Its innovations – especially in variable speed drive technology – deliver substantial energy and emissions savings across industrial processes.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future Global Growth Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar shares returned 8.1%* in dollar terms in the period under review, versus the 9.5% return from the MSCI World Index (the comparator benchmark).

The first half of 2025 was marked by persistent volatility driven by shifting geopolitical dynamics and evolving economic policy. Early-year optimism gave way to broad-based equity weakness in late February, as rising tensions and a deterioration in consumer confidence triggered a sharp market pullback. A further bout of turbulence followed in April, when the announcement of tariffs – on what came to be known as “Liberation Day” – led to a swift selloff across equities and bonds. However, this was quickly reversed after the US administration paused the tariffs and opened trade talks with China, helping to stabilise sentiment and spark a broad recovery in risk assets. Despite the volatile backdrop, most major asset classes ended the period with positive returns, supported by solid economic data and the avoidance of worst-case scenarios.

Market leadership shifted dramatically over the period. Large-cap technology stocks, particularly the “Magnificent Seven,” experienced steep declines early in the year but rebounded strongly in Q2, fuelled by resilient earnings and improved investor optimism. Our underweight to this group was beneficial during the initial selloff, helping to cushion losses relative to the broader market. However, their outperformance in the latter months presented a headwind to returns, though we were pleased to deliver strong relative performance despite limited exposure. In terms of stock-specifics, Spotify continued its strong performance, with its Q1 2025 results reflecting robust user and subscriber growth, with monthly active users (MAUs) rising 10% year-over-year to 678 million and premium subscribers increasing 12% to 268 million. Revenue climbed 15% year-over-year to €4.2 billion. However, both earnings per share (EPS) and total revenue came in slightly below analyst expectations. Despite the shortfall, CEO Daniel Ek underscored the platform's resilience amid economic uncertainty and highlighted strong user engagement and retention as key strengths supporting long-term momentum.

Medical technology company TransMedics rose sharply during the period. Held under our Enabling innovation in healthcare theme, TransMedics had a very poor second half of 2024 and there was a large amount of scepticism as to whether the company could reaccelerate revenue growth. Its most recent results were extremely impressive: revenues grew 48% year-over-year and net income more than doubled to $26 million in the quarter.

Shares in accounting software specialist Intuit moved higher over the first six months, most notably driven by a strong results release in May. Held under our Enabling SMEs theme, Intuit reported that revenue in the fiscal third quarter rose by 15% to $7.8 billion, fuelled by a strong tax season and sustained momentum in Intuit's Global Business Solutions Group and Credit Karma. The latter benefited particularly from strength in credit cards, personal loans, and auto insurance.

For the full fiscal year, Intuit now expects to report revenue in the range of $18.723 billion to $18.760 billion, representing growth of approximately 15%—an upward revision from its previous guidance of 12–13% growth.

Among the detractors was Becton Dickinson which fell sharply over the period. This is a c.$60 billion market capitalisation business in the healthcare sector, listed in the United States. The company's products enhance medication management, patient safety, infection prevention, surgical procedures, drug delivery, anaesthesiology care, disease diagnosis and cellular research.

Becton Dickinson's share price fall was confounding to us. Revenues missed consensus but better than expected operating margins led to a 2% beat to EPS. Organic revenue growth for the full year 2025 was lowered from 4-4.5% to 3-3.5%. There are lots of headwinds facing the business at present, from weakness in China, to National Institutes of Health funding cuts in the US, to tariff headwinds, so we think a 1% cut to organic topline growth isn't too bad in this context. The fall leaves the shares on less than 12x forward earnings, which for the quality and resilience of the business, is far too low in our opinion. A recent investment in the Sub-Fund, we are frustrated that we were a few months too early on our entry, but remain confident that the shares will perform well in the coming years from this low base.

Thermo Fisher was also among the detractors as the life-science industry continues to be in recovery mode following the post-pandemic issues with inventory, as well as ongoing weakness from China. While many of these issues are beginning to pass, the incremental headwind for its core pharmaceutical and biotechnology customer base from the Most Favoured Nation (MFN) legislation led to a multiple derating over the period. Thermo is a high quality business, and we remain confident it can again grow its revenue and earnings, but the market has lost patience with it and the wider Life Science group.

Trade activity

As mentioned previously, we initiated a new position in Becton Dickinson, a $60 billion US-listed healthcare company. Its low-cost, essential products support medication delivery, infection control, and patient safety – key pillars of value-based care. Despite flat earnings and a derated valuation, we see strong long-term growth potential, acquiring shares at 15x earnings. To fund this, we exited Roche, a longstanding position, due to upcoming patent risks and better capital allocation opportunities elsewhere. We sold at a multi-year high, aided by excitement over a GLP-1 pipeline.

We also initiated a position in IDEXX Laboratories, a leader in pet diagnostics and aligned with our Enabling healthier lifestyles theme. Its long-term growth outlook remains attractive despite a cyclical slowdown. This was funded by selling Ansys, after its acquisition by Synopsys was announced. We exited when the share price reflected only a modest discount to the deal, amid geopolitical risk around regulatory approval.

Ingersoll Rand was added under our Improving the resource efficiency of industrial and agricultural processes theme. The business provides energy-efficient compressors used across manufacturing, offering significant energy savings.

We exited Avanza, a Swedish savings platform, due to cyclically elevated earnings, rising rates and management turnover. Last, TechnoPro was sold following prolonged low conviction and underperformance, with the exit timed to a rally on privatisation rumours.

Outlook

2024 presented severe headwinds for mid-cap investors, with the asset class facing a challenging backdrop due to macroeconomic uncertainty and shifting market sentiment. However, we believe these headwinds are now beginning to reverse. In our view, small and mid-cap areas of the market continue to offer some of the most compelling long-term investment opportunities, and we believe we are currently positioned at a very attractive entry point.

This conviction is further supported by current valuations, which remain well below historical norms. Many stocks within this cohort are trading at substantial discounts relative to their 20-year averages, offering a favourable risk-reward profile for long-term investors.

The same valuation opportunity is evident within our portfolio. A significant proportion of our holdings are trading at meaningful discounts to their five-year average valuations. This has resulted in an overall portfolio valuation that is materially below its five-year average, despite the fact that our holdings are delivering stronger revenue and earnings growth, alongside significantly higher return on equity (ROE).

As we have highlighted on multiple occasions, the primary driver of the portfolio continues to be the global transition toward a more sustainable economy. This structural shift is underpinned by enduring economic, environmental and societal imperatives that extend well beyond short-term market volatility or political developments – whether in the US or elsewhere.

The Sub-Fund's Class A5 Accumulating Euro shares returned -1.9%* in euros over the period under review, versus -1.1% from the comparator benchmark, which is a blend of 50% MSCI World, 35% Markit iBoxx EUR Overall and 15% ESTER.

VeriSign, the company that ensures .com websites are running 24/7, also had a strong six months. This has resulted in an overall portfolio valuation that is materially below its five-year average, despite the fact that our holdings are delivering stronger revenue and earnings growth, alongside significantly higher return on equity. Within fixed income, we continue to hold a strategic long duration stance, reflecting our expectation of declining yields amid weakening economic data and anticipated rate cuts from the Bank of England. While the near-term focus remains on fiscal policy and debt sustainability ahead of the Autumn budget, which could introduce volatility, our longer-term outlook anticipates more rate cuts than currently priced, justifying our overweight duration position.

While we believe corporate bonds continue to offer attractive value, providing solid compensation relative to their underlying fundamentals, further spread compression appears limited. Credit spreads, which had previously widened due to volatility stemming from US tariff policy, have since tightened and now trade close to fair value. Despite this, healthy fundamentals across the asset class – especially within the high-quality bonds held in the portfolio – mean that credit still provides a meaningful yield premium over gilts. We continue to identify selective opportunities within the market and are using these to move up in credit quality across the portfolio.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future US Growth Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar shares returned 4.8%* in US dollar terms compared to the MSCI USA Index and IA North America (both comparator benchmarks) returns of 6.1% and 5.9% respectively over the same period.

The first half of 2025 was marked by sharp swings in market sentiment, driven by corporate earnings, guidance sensitivity and the evolving tariff landscape. The year began positively, with January delivering strong absolute and relative returns as the dominance of the "Magnificent Seven" faded and quality growth names in the portfolio were rewarded. However, February reversed these gains, with several holdings falling sharply after disappointing quarterly results or issuing cautious full-year guidance. Investor sensitivity to forward-looking statements grew, and companies offering weaker guidance were punished disproportionately.

March brought escalating trade tensions as the White House's tariff war intensified. New 25% tariffs on Canadian and Mexican imports and doubled Chinese levies prompted retaliation, with exemptions for some sectors proving short-lived. Successive tariff announcements unsettled markets, culminating in heightened anxiety ahead of "Liberation Day."

In Q2, markets recovered strongly from the turbulence at the end of Q1. Despite lingering geopolitical and fiscal risks, investors appeared to discount fears of a tariff-induced slowdown, focusing instead on resilient corporate fundamentals and the potential for policy support. The rebound helped the portfolio regain lost ground as risk appetite returned.

Organ transplant company TransMedics almost doubled during the period. Held under our Enabling innovation in healthcare theme, TransMedics had a poor second half of 2024 and there was a large amount of scepticism as to whether the company could reaccelerate revenue growth, exacerbated by a short report released at the start of the year. Its most recent results were impressive: revenues grew 48% year-over-year and net income more than doubled to $26 million in the quarter.

KLA Corporation, market leader in process control inspection and metrology, delivered first-quarter 2025 results that exceeded analyst forecasts. Earnings per share came in at $8.41, ahead of the expected $8.07, while revenue reached $3.06 billion, surpassing the consensus estimates. Held under our Better monitoring of supply chains and quality control theme, KLA's machines help to identify defects in chips throughout the semiconductor manufacturing process, helping to improve production yields, reduce waste, and prevent defective products being sent to customers.

VeriSign, the company that ensures .com websites are running 24/7, also performed strongly over the year to date. After experiencing a period of falling websites using the .com domains in recent years, the company appears to have bucked this trend so far this year, having returned to growth.

Among the detractors was Becton Dickinson, whose products enhance medication management, patient safety, infection prevention, surgical procedures, drug delivery, anaesthesiology care, disease diagnosis and cellular research. The company is exposed to our theme of Providing affordable healthcare, as its huge scale enables it to provide high quality products at highly competitive prices.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future US Growth Fund

Becton Dickinson's share price fall confounded us. Revenues missed consensus by 1.5% in the quarter but better than expected operating margins led to a 2% beat to earnings expectations. The big issue we believe was the fact that the company lowered guidance for organic growth the full year, from 4-4.5% to 3-3.5%. There are multiple of headwinds facing the business at present, from weakness in China, National Institutes of Health funding cuts in the US, to tariff headwinds – we think a 1% cut to organic topline growth appears reasonable in this context. The fall leaves the shares on less than 12x forward earning – a 30% discount to the company's 15-year average. The last time it traded at this multiple was in 2012, there are not many companies you can say that about in the current market environment. Becton Dickinson is a recent addition to the Sub-Fund and we are frustrated that we were a few months too early on our entry, but remain confident for the shares to perform well in the coming years from this low base.

Thermo Fisher was also among the detractors as the life-science industry continues to be in recovery mode following the post-pandemic issues with inventory, as well as ongoing weakness from China. While many of these issues are beginning to pass, the incremental headwind for its core pharmaceutical and biotechnology customer base from the Most Favoured Nation (MFN) legislation led to a multiple derating over the quarter. Thermo is a high quality business, and we remain confident it can again grow its revenue and earnings, but the market has lost patience with it and the wider Life Science sector. The recovery has certainly taken longer than expected.

Trading Activity

We added Remitly Global, a $3.5 billion market capitalisation company whose mission is to help migrants around the world make their money go further by reducing fees on remittances. It is a rare case of an investable company that addresses the Sustainable Development Goal 10 – Reduced Inequalities. The World Bank estimated that sending remittances costs an average of 6.6% of the amount sent. Bringing this figure down to 1.6% would save the world's poorest people up to $16 billion a year. Remitly typically charges less than half what the incumbents charge and is therefore seeing strong growth, with quarterly active customer growth of 29% in the first quarter of 2025 and amount sent growing 41% year over year. This growth is coming in at attractive incremental margins and as the business continues to scale we believe margins will expand, providing us with a highly attractive expected annual return.

We also added Ingersoll Rand, a $36 billion company exposed to our 'improving industrial and agricultural efficiency' theme through the equipment and services it sells to a wide range of end markets. In particular, Ingersoll is a market leader in air compressors, which make up over 50% of revenues and globally account for 10% or more of electricity usage in the manufacturing sector. 80% of the total cost of ownership is due to the energy consumed during use, which means companies compete on efficiency rather than price. Approximately 10% of revenues are also exposed to our 'innovation in healthcare' theme, where a variety of equipment is sold for pharmaceutical manufacturing, or to be used in medical devices.

A large part of the company's industrial exposure has experienced several years of depressed investments and so we took the opportunity to acquire shares in the business due to our five year investment horizon at what we felt was an attractive valuation.

To make space for these purchases, we sold our holding in the elevator company Otis, which had been in the Sub-Fund since launch. We also exited our final position in the insurance broker Brown & Brown and our holding in the simulation software company Ansys, which is in the process of being acquired by Synopsis. On Brown & Brown, it was a simple case of a lack of compelling further upside that caused us to exit. On Ansys, we sold before the deal closed at a c.8% discount to the deal price. We are concerned that the current geopolitical dynamics between the US and China could result in China blocking the deal, as both Ansys and Synopsis have large revenue exposure to China.

The MSCI Europe Index returned 8.6% in euro terms in the six months to 30 June 2025.

European markets displayed relative resilience in the face of volatility stemming from the US.

At the start of 2025, European markets began to show some resilience as US markets came under pressure – a reversal of the prevailing trend in recent years. US technology mega-caps suffered a correction following disruptive AI advancements from China's DeepSeek.

Markets then experienced a profound exogenous shock in early April in the form of the tariff policy initially unveiled by the Trump administration. Recurring threats of sweeping tariffs had cast a persistent shadow over markets during the first quarter, but the scale of levies announced on April 2nd ("Liberation Day") exceeded investors' fears.

However, the Trump administration quickly started to ease its stance on the level of tariffs or at least announce a pause, and global equity markets rallied strongly through to the year's half-way point.

European market gains were also supported by the prospect of significant extra fiscal stimulus. Trump's threat to remove military and financial support to Ukraine saw European governments react by stepping up defence spending plans – none more so than Germany, which eased fiscal rules in order to unleash a huge defence and infrastructure spending programme.

Financials (+23%) was the strongest sector in the European market, followed by utilities (+22%), communications services (+19%) and industrials (+18%), while the only areas in negative territory in euro terms were consumer discretionary (-7.0%) and healthcare (-4.3%).

Portfolio Activity

The Sub-Fund's Class A5 Accumulating Euro shares returned 8.9%* in the six months to 30 June 2025.

Despite the European Central Bank cutting rates eight times since June 2024, European banks continued to perform well, with ongoing momentum in net interest income and earnings growth.

Our investment framework has long recognised that the European banking sector is structurally healthier than it was in the wake of the global financial crisis. Valuations remain attractive relative to earnings power, with some institutions still trading at discounts to book value. Balance sheets are stronger, non-performing loans are low, and many banks are now generating surplus capital. These dynamics are encouraging for shareholders, with the potential for higher cash returns through dividends and buybacks in the years ahead.

Spanish lenders Banco Santander (+60%) and Caixabank (+45%), Germany's Deutsche Bank (+54%) and Italian bank UniCredit (+51%) comprised the Sub-Fund's top four contributors to performance over the six months as they reported strong financial results and announced large-scale capital returns to shareholders via buyback programmes.

Within the portfolio, Kongsberg Gruppen (+50%) was among the most directly exposed to the uplift in military spending expectations. The Norwegian group supplies technologies to defence, energy, maritime, fisheries and aerospace industries. Its share price rally was also supported by the announcement of a major contract with Germany for the delivery of Joint Strike Missiles (JSM) to equip its fleet of F-35 fighter jets.

British retailer Next (+26%) bucked the sector weakness in consumer discretionary after it upgraded sales and profit forecasts following stronger than expected sales in the first eight weeks of the year.

In contrast, Danish jewellery retailer Pandora (-15%) lost ground as its 2025 outlook fell short of investors' expectations. When releasing 2024 full-year results, Pandora predicted 7-8% organic sales growth, below the 9% consensus.

Portfolio Changes

Gamma Communications (-27%), the B2B communications group, slid as it noted that although 2025 trading in continental Europe had begun positively, UK market conditions have softened – leading Gamma to initiate some cost-cutting measures.

Shares of Intercontinental Hotels Group (-19%) were also weak as February's release of in-line 2024 results appeared to trigger some profit taking after a period of very strong relative performance in 2023 and 2024.

Changes to the Sub-Fund's portfolio of holdings are driven by our annual review of companies' reports and accounts. This in-depth quantitative and qualitative review is core to the Cashflow Solution investment process. It involves the forensic analysis of historic cash flows and balance sheet developments.

We apply a simple quantitative screen using two measures of cash flow to create a composite ranking of the European universe of companies, with only the top 20% – the Cashflow Champions watchlist – qualifying for further qualitative analysis.

We then aim to pick the very best investments from within the watchlist by categorising stocks according to secondary scores. We also apply a set of key proprietary indicators. These allow us to designate the prevailing market regime and, in turn, optimise portfolio construction by emphasising different secondary scores within stock selection in order to target growth or value exposure.

Mindful of the market turbulence seen earlier in the year, we implemented selective portfolio changes as part of the annual review process, maintaining a focus on attractive cash flow stocks which provide a balanced portfolio style profile across growth, value or quality.

Outlook

At the current time, and despite the volatility seen during the first six months of 2025, our assessment of the European outlook remains stable and positive: valuations are reasonably attractive, stockmarkets remain in an uptrend, and there is little sign of the kind of poor corporate investment that would lead us to be more cautious.

Despite their strong performance, Europe's best cash flow stocks are still inexpensive. Our analysis shows the constituents of the Cashflow Champions watchlist have rallied strongly from their very low valuations a few months ago but remain cheap versus history.

From a style perspective, our indicators continue to point to a balanced portfolio by style, i.e. some exposure to quality, growth and value. In the event of a return to geo-political or economic related volatility, in the medium term we would expect our investment process to take advantage of any significant market dislocation and subsequent opportunities that may arise.

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2025

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B8 Accumulating USD shares returned 13.2% in US dollar terms over the period to 30 June 2025, compared with the 2.1% return of the Secured Overnight Financing Rate reference benchmark and the 4.3% return of the HFRX Equity Hedge (USD) Index, also a reference benchmark.

The positive impact of Trump's election victory on US markets continued into early 2025 with growth, technology and crypto in particular delivering gains.

Early April saw the announcement of 'Liberation Day' – the new US trade tariff policy – which sent markets into a downward spiral, reversing the YTD gains in days. Markets quickly regained their footing however as trade tensions eased and investors focused on robust earnings and the prospect of lower interest rates; the S&P 500's 6.2% US dollar terms bounce in May was the strongest monthly performance since November 2023.

Of note has been the rotation out of the 'Magnificent Seven' as market leadership broadened out with Apple, Tesla and Alphabet ending the first half in negative territory: -18%, -21% and -7% respectively.

The US dominates the MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) – accounting for 65% of its capitalisation – but underperformance in the first half of 2025 left other areas driving the index gain. Korea was particularly strong after a positive election outcome, while Germany also forged ahead following an election and subsequent commitments to a huge fiscal stimulus package.

Portfolio review

The Sub-Fund outperformed the rise in global equity markets even though average net market exposure was around 50%. Strong stockpicking returns allowed the long book (average 94% exposure) to contribute 15% to Sub-Fund performance, while the short book contribution was flat despite 44% exposure to a rising market.

The best performing strategies over the period included AI infrastructure, financial services and defence spending.

- AI Infrastructure: the long position in Seagate Technology led this basket's performance as the shares surged on strong Q1 results and a successful analyst day, which led to significant upgrades to earnings forecasts. Proprietary quantitative analysis led the risk management of this position, allowing the Sub-Fund to move to a very high conviction level, adding to the position both ahead and after the meeting.
- Defence spending: we are net long a basket of defence names, including Rolls Royce, which benefited from heightened geopolitical risks and the increasing pressure on governments to increase defence budgets.
- Financial services: on the long side Plus500 and Robinhood Markets performed strongly, balanced by a drag from a short asset manager, which rallied on low quality corporate news.

On the negative side of attribution, the crypto basket dragged on performance. It was our net short position in a rallying market that was the drag – the Sub-Fund is long industry leader Coinbase, which rose significantly, but short some of the miners.

Portfolio Changes

- AI Infrastructure: we removed a couple of positions in chip designers on the short side. We also trimmed the position in Seagate towards the end of the period given its significant rally but continue to own the name, viewing the fundamental story as compelling with a still undemanding valuation. Given the growing size of the Seagate position, we added a new short in a US provider of digital storage solutions as a partial hedge.
- We initiated a position in Atlassian, a company we have owned in the past. Atlassian has enjoyed continued strong cloud migration and growth as well as making strong progress on its AI platform, which has become stickier, added more value, and extended its reach across every team in the enterprise. Our intrinsic valuation suggests over 30% upside to the current share price.

Liontrust GF Global Alpha Long Short Fund

- Consumer: We removed Amazon as a long hedge and took off the short in a US ecommerce brand for handmade goods, while adding to the short in a UK online grocery business. We also added an Indian holding – Eternal – increasing portfolio diversification into this high growth Indian quick commerce name.
- Fintech: we reduced the net long by adding on the short side to an insurtech name based on accounting concerns whilst also selling the Upstart long.
- Mobility: we moved from flat to net long upon reducing the short in a US EV manufacturer. Given the easing of China/US trade tensions and a valuation still at a significant discount to global peers, we added to our position in leading EV carmaker BYD.
- Asset management/trading: we initiated a new strategy to reflect both increased volatility as well as the structural earnings power reduction for asset managers as markets struggle to move higher.

Outlook

Global geopolitical risk is high, led by a US administration that is putting America first. This creates a backdrop that requires a much more careful assessment of risk versus reward. We believe that risk-adjusted returns will be front and centre of investors' minds running through the second half of the year.

Thematically, we remain positive on the potential for AI to drive significant benefits across all industries and continue to work on identifying winners.

We have waited patiently for the crypto world to unfold and the IPO of Circle Internet could act as a ChatGPT moment for Stablecoins. This will benefit the entire blockchain/crypto supply chain and – together with fintech – remains a key theme for the rest of this year.

Our base case is that equity markets globally remain little changed in the second half of the year, but that the polarisation of winners and losers will remain significant. In this environment, overall market returns will be less important and, for the first time in many years, stock selection outside the very biggest companies in the world will matter, as will geographical diversification.

Liontrust GF Global Technology Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended six months

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar shares returned 16.7%* in the six months to 30.06.25, versus the MSCI World Information Technology Index's return of 8.5% (a comparator benchmark).

The past few months have proved a strong reminder that in the short term, market sentiment often drives share prices, but over the longer term it is underlying fundamentals that determine investor returns.

We are now around two years into this new market cycle, characterised by both high returns and pronounced volatility. This was evident as the VIX volatility index spiked to levels not seen since the GFC following April's "Liberation Day" trade policy announcements from the US which sent reverberations around global markets. Heightened uncertainty around tariffs and their potential impact on inflation and trade activity weighed on investor sentiment, the MSCI World index falling over 9% in early April - the fifth worst sell-off we have seen in the past 75 years.

During such sharp market sell-offs or resets, the best-performing stocks from the preceding period often suffer the steepest declines – a phenomenon we witnessed acutely in April, with a number of innovative global companies which had led markets over prior periods selling down strongly.

Importantly, we continued to see evidence of strengthening underlying fundamentals from these companies throughout this period, as evidenced in consistently strong earnings updates and positive progress witnessed first-hand during our quarterly research trips. We are increasingly confident that the winners of this cycle will be different to those of the past, with new companies emerging against this volatile backdrop to position themselves on the right side of multiple innovation cycles across sectors in the years ahead.

Our position in CoreWeave proved an astute addition during the period, emerging as a top contributor. A next-generation cloud provider purpose-built for generative AI, CoreWeave delivers high-performance, GPU-accelerated infrastructure that meets the growing demand for accelerated compute. Unlike legacy cloud vendors, CoreWeave has architected its platform from the ground up for AI workloads, offering low-latency, elastic compute capacity at a lower cost. The company pivoted from crypto mining and moved early to secure access to cutting-edge GPUs, establishing a deep relationship with Nvidia and emerging as a preferred partner for AI leaders including OpenAI and Mistral. CoreWeave delivered exceptional quarterly results in its first post-IPO update with revenues of $982 million up a staggering 420% year-on-year, whilst adjusted operating income of $163 million grew by 550%, both well ahead of consensus. Forward prospects remain exceptionally strong as demand for inference and fine-tuning workloads accelerate, with the company securing a five-year, $11.9 billion deal with OpenAI plus an additional $4 billion expansion contract, growing its revenue backlog to c$26 billion.

With full-year revenues guided to c.$5 billion, management expects operating leverage to emerge as they scale, with adjusted operating margins forecast to reach 27-28% by 2027. Shares rallied impressively throughout the second quarter, gaining over 300% as investors recognised the company's exceptional positioning in AI infrastructure and secular growth opportunity ahead. Given this rapid ramp-up we have been managing our position carefully, trimming our position as the company approaches our target price.

Palantir, also a top performer, is scaling rapidly as enterprises and governments adopt AI in production. Its Artificial Intelligence Platform (AIP) enables organisations to integrate and act on large, complex datasets – a capability built on over a decade of ontology development. While the company's roots remain in government and defence (where revenue rose 45% YoY as of its February quarter update), its commercial business is now expanding even faster (US commercial revenue grew 64% in the same period). AIP is being used to automate underwriting, optimise supply chains, and orchestrate manufacturing at scale, helping customers compress workflows from weeks to hours. With $5 billion in cash and a growing base of long-term platform commitments, Palantir is cementing its position as the orchestration layer of enterprise AI, with a strong runway of growth ahead.

On the other hand, while market sentiment broadly recovered after April's sell off, the volatile backdrop meant any miss in earnings was ultimately punished, as evidenced by key detractors to Sub-Fund performance. While misses are of course disappointing, we were reassured to see positive signals of fundamental strength which reaffirm our conviction in these companies in the longer term.

Onto Innovation detracted from Sub-Fund performance despite delivering record quarterly revenue of $267 million, up 17% year-over-year, and beating EPS expectations with $1.51 versus $1.47 forecasted. A leading provider of process control and inspection equipment for semiconductor manufacturing, the company's miss came not from operational execution but from cautious Q2 guide and anticipation that Q3 would be the lowest revenue point of the year, reflecting timing concerns around customer investment patterns and memory market dynamics. However, underlying fundamentals remain robust, with advanced nodes revenue up 96% quarter-over-quarter and the company maintaining strong positioning across critical growth markets including AI packaging, high bandwidth memory and 3D interconnect technologies. Management highlighted significant progress with new product launches, including 3Di technology securing initial orders from leading HBM manufacturers and a $69 million volume purchase agreement with a major DRAM producer, whilst expanding manufacturing capabilities in Asia to enhance business continuity and competitiveness.

The company remains strategically positioned for long-term growth as semiconductor complexity increases, with strong market positions in inspection, metrology and integrated solutions serving the industry's transition to advanced packaging and AI-optimised chips. Nonetheless, with attractive opportunities emerging elsewhere during this volatile period, we opted to exit our position and move it back to the watchlist where we will continue to monitor it for a more attractive entry point in the future.

Outlook

Supported by insights from recent team research trips to the US and Japan, we remain buoyed about the long-term growth prospects for innovative global technology companies in the Sub-Fund, which remain well positioned for multiple new innovation cycles across different sectors in the years ahead. This was reinforced by another strong earnings season, where we have seen evidence of innovative technology companies proving their resilience and adaptability while strengthening their competitive positioning against a difficult market backdrop. While a degree of macroeconomic and regulatory uncertainty persists, we are reassured to see that fundamentals – rather than sentiment – will ultimately be rewarded in the market.

We look forward to sharing insights from our recent research trips in the coming weeks. With the pace of innovation accelerating and numerous new structural growth opportunities emerging, we are seeing a lot of exciting new opportunities emerge across the industry landscape, bolstering our confidence that the winners of this new innovation cycle will be different from those of the last.

As always, we will continue to maintain our valuation discipline, taking advantage of further market dislocations to invest in innovative global leaders with strong competitive barriers at attractive prices.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar shares returned 14.9%* in six months to 30.06.25, compared with 9.5% for the MSCI World Index (a comparator benchmark).

The past few months have proved a strong reminder that in the short term, market sentiment often drives share prices, but over the longer term it is underlying fundamentals that determine investor returns.

We are now around two years into this new market cycle, characterised by both high returns and pronounced volatility. This was evident as the VIX volatility index spiked to levels not seen since the GFC following April's "Liberation Day" trade policy announcements from the US which sent reverberations around global markets. Heightened uncertainty around tariffs and their potential impact on inflation and trade activity weighed on investor sentiment, the MSCI World index to falling over 9% in early April – the fifth worst sell-off we have seen in the past 75 years.

During such sharp market sell-offs or resets, the best-performing stocks from the preceding period often suffer the steepest declines – a phenomenon we witnessed acutely in April, with a number of innovative global leaders which had led markets over prior periods selling down strongly.

Importantly, we continued to see evidence of strengthening underlying fundamentals from these companies throughout this period, as evidenced in consistently strong earnings updates and positive progress witnessed first-hand during our quarterly research trips. We are increasingly confident that the winners of this cycle will be different to those of the past, with new global leaders emerging against this volatile backdrop to position themselves on the right side of multiple innovation cycles across sectors in the years ahead.

Constellation Energy was a top contributor to performance in the period under review, despite falling by over 15% in early April, with the shares rallying to finish the first half of the year strongly. The global leader in nuclear power, Constellation provided another strong update in May, delivering Q1 earnings per share (EPS) of $2.14, reaffirming full-year guidance of $8.90-$9.60, and reiterating its 13% target for average annual EPS growth through to 2030. We first invested in Constellation in early 2024 on the thesis that large-scale nuclear utilities would re-rate as demand for stable power generation becomes invaluable in the AI age. A year on, the opportunity looks even more compelling. Constellation owns the largest nuclear fleet in the US, 21 gigawatt (GW) across 23 reactors, roughly 2.5× the capacity of the next biggest operator, and supplying c.22% of all US nuclear power. That installed base is not only irreplaceable but increasingly sought after: hyperscale data centres are shifting from price to uptime, and clean baseload capacity is now mission-critical infrastructure. Upgrades are being driven by rising clean energy premiums, accelerating demand from AI workloads, and structural tailwinds from policy. The nuclear production tax credit provides downside protection and an inflation-linked floor, while the recently announced Calpine acquisition brings 26 GW of complementary natural gas assets with flexible load-balancing capability.

Critically, Constellation's strategy is already tangible: the business is signing large-scale, long-term contracts with data centre operators – notably including Microsoft, and more recently Meta – to provide clean, reliable power with fixed-price certainty over 20+ years. While volatility remains due to long-dated cash flows and macro sentiment, the investment case is clear: Constellation is building the foundational grid layer to meet surging energy demand, accelerated by AI. In a world of constrained supply, regulatory bottlenecks and rising demand, nuclear incumbency is a structural moat. This is no longer a defensive utility. It is a next-generation compounder, well positioned to continue its strong double-digit earnings and dividend growth trajectory in the years ahead.

Amphenol was another top contributor to Sub-Fund performance in the period, with its shares climbing in April after the company delivered a monster 20% earnings beat matched by a 20% guidance raise. Earnings grew by 58% yoy, and orders by the same magnitude – underpinning durable and visible revenue streams well into next year. Amphenol has been one of our key top-ups amid the past two months' volatility.

As the leading supplier of high-tech interconnects globally, Amphenol is an essential component of the electric backbone of the economy, enabling electrification across every industry from defence to industrials to autos to data centres. Growth was broad-based, but the latter is where we have seen continued outsized growth for five quarters, with no slowdown in sight.

Liontrust GF Global Dividend Fund

With an earnings growth track record underpinned by strong fundamentals, the company appears well positioned for sustained top- and bottom-line growth in the years ahead.

Oracle has emerged as the standout winner in cloud infrastructure for AI workloads, reporting cloud infrastructure revenue surging 52% year-on-year to $3 billion in its latest quarter, management projecting this to accelerate to over 70% growth in the coming year. It is becoming increasingly evident that Oracle Cloud Infrastructure (OCI) is the de facto cloud for AI workloads, with the company's technical advantages in clustering technology setting it apart from competitors.

Significantly, the company also announced a transformational $30 billion annual revenue agreement with OpenAI in the second quarter, part of the Project Stargate initiative to build massive AI data centres across the US. Under this landmark deal, OpenAI will rent 4.5GW of data centre capacity from Oracle starting in fiscal 2028, more than doubling Oracle's current cloud revenue and cementing its position as a critical infrastructure partner for the world's leading AI companies.

With 70 data centres under construction and capital expenditures expected to exceed $25 billion in the coming year to meet "almost insatiable" demand, Oracle is positioning itself as not only the world's largest cloud application company but also a new leader in modern cloud infrastructure.

A key detractor to performance during the period was United Health – a company in which we had substantially reduced our position ahead of earnings, taking profit as shares had a strong year-to-date run coming into April. This valuation discipline proved astute as shares fell after the company posted a disappointing update and guide in April largely on an unexpected jump in senior healthcare utilisation in the US, with volumes roughly doubling in physician and outpatient settings particularly for elective procedures in the public-sector Medicare Advantage group. This jump correlated with recent premium hikes, with retirees reacting by increasing utilisation of preventative care – a feeder of outpatient care. Shares fell further on confirmation of news that the DoJ was investigating the company for Medicare fraud, though we believe that the impact of such an investigation had already largely been baked in to company-dampened guide. While these developments were disappointing, we remain confident that the company's long-term proposition remains intact, with the business model unchanged – as the largest health insurer in the US, UnitedHealth retains significant scale advantages and strategic differentiation through its vertically integrated model as payer, provider and pharmacy benefit manager.

LVMH was another key detractor, with its shares selling off alongside luxury peers as global uncertainty weighed on consumer sentiment and spending. The company's Q1 update disappointed as organic sales fell slightly year-on-year, and while the global leader in luxury showed pockets of resilience – including continued strength in Europe, watches & jewellery, and brands such as Sephora and Tiffany – this was overshadowed by persistent softness in Chinese consumer demand and a slowdown in the US which impacted sales in the group's key fashion & leather goods division. While macro conditions remain challenging, the group continues to execute well and we remain confident in LVMH's ability to navigate the current environment. Management is responding with agility, tightening cost controls while continuing to invest in brand equity and product innovation across its global leading portfolio. As such we took the opportunity to top up throughout the quarter, confident that the group's proven leadership and structural advantages – unparalleled scale, vertical integration, and brand desirability – will allow it to emerge stronger as consumer sentiment stabilises.

Outlook

Supported by insights from recent team research trips to the US and Japan, we remain buoyed about the long-term growth prospects for innovative global leaders in the Sub-Fund, which remain well positioned for multiple new innovation cycles across different sectors in the years ahead. This was reinforced by another strong earnings season, where we have seen evidence of innovative companies proving their resilience and adaptability while strengthening their competitive positioning against a difficult market backdrop. Market Review

The Sub-Fund's Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar shares returned 18.9%* in the six months to 30.06.25 compared with the 10.1% return from the MSCI All Country World Index (a comparator benchmark).

The past few months have proved a strong reminder that in the short term, market sentiment often drives share prices, but over the longer term it is underlying fundamentals that determine investor returns.

We are now around two years into this new market cycle, characterised by both high returns and pronounced volatility. This was evident as the VIX volatility index spiked to levels not seen since the GFC following April's "Liberation Day" trade policy announcements from the US which sent reverberations around global markets. Heightened uncertainty around tariffs and their potential impact on inflation and trade activity weighed on investor sentiment, the MSCI World index falling over 9% in early April – the fifth worst sell-off we have seen in the past 75 years.

We are increasingly confident that the winners of this cycle will be different to those of the past, with new global leaders emerging against this volatile backdrop to position themselves on the right side of multiple innovation cycles across sectors in the years ahead.

Top contributors to Sub-Fund performance all suffered sharp sell-offs in April but subsequently rallied on the back of broader market sentiment and strong earnings updates which underscored strengthening fundamentals and accelerating innovation profiles.

GE Vernova was the top performer over the period under review. The company continues to go from strength to strength as the global leader in power generation equipment capitalises on the most significant electricity load growth since the post-World War II industrial buildout. Following two decades of near-zero growth, electricity consumption is breaking out globally, driven by the surge in demand from AI data centres, which are up to 10x more power-intensive than traditional facilities. In this context, it is installed base champions that benefit most directly: new capacity takes years to build, but existing fleets can be serviced and scaled immediately. GE Vernova's installed base – mostly high-efficiency gas turbines – already powers a third of the world's electricity, providing immediate exposure to this structural demand shift. The company's gas turbine backlog now stretches into 2029, with the electrification backlog also growing sharply, taking total backlog to $123 billion – a clear sign of supply-constrained secular growth. This translated into strong quarterly results throughout the period, with accelerating revenue, expanding margins, and robust free cash flow generation. Management reaffirmed guidance despite absorbing an estimated $300-400 million tariff headwind (later revised down on an improving trade backdrop), highlighting the company's pricing flexibility and operational resilience. Importantly, data centre demand has yet to meaningfully enter the reported backlog, but management noted that one-third of slot reservation agreements already paid for relate to data centres, pointing to further upside ahead. With a hefty 60% of GE Vernova's backlog tied to high-margin services, the company is well positioned for sustained visibility and margin expansion over the next several years as global electrification accelerates.

Meanwhile our position in CoreWeave proved an astute addition during the period, emerging as a top contributor to performance. A next-generation cloud provider purpose-built for generative AI, CoreWeave delivers high-performance, GPU-accelerated infrastructure that meets the growing demand for accelerated compute. Unlike legacy cloud vendors, CoreWeave has architected its platform from the ground up for AI workloads, offering low-latency, elastic compute capacity at a lower cost. While misses are of course disappointing, we were reassured to see positive signals of fundamental strength which reaffirm our conviction in these companies in the longer term.

Sweetgreen continues to establish itself as a leader in healthy fast-casual dining, combining technology and locally sourced ingredients to drive growth. Q2 revenue reached $166 million, with margins supported by its Infinite Kitchen automation, though same-store sales fell 3% amid softer consumer trends in key markets. The company's digital focus is paying off, with its SG Rewards program attracting 20,000 new customers weekly and providing valuable data for retention. Operational efficiency and strong unit economics are enabling profitability even in a challenging environment. With an expanded menu, seasonal collaborations, and a pipeline of 40+ new openings planned for 2025, Sweetgreen is well positioned to capture market share and accelerate growth as consumer demand stabilises.

Novo Nordisk, the global leader in GLP-1 weight-loss drugs, faced a challenging period as softer trial results, competition concerns, and leadership changes weighed on sentiment. Q1 delivered mixed results: net profit beat expectations, but Wegovy sales of $2.6bn missed forecasts, prompting management to trim full-year guidance to 13–21% growth. Longtime CEO Lars Fruergaard Jørgensen is stepping down, signalling a strategic refresh as the company navigates near-term headwinds. Despite these challenges, the GLP-1 market remains vastly underpenetrated, with only ~1% of eligible US adults treated and a $100bn market opportunity by 2030. Novo's strong pipeline, including amycretin, and manufacturing investments underpin recovery, while global expansion and its dominant 70% market share position it well for long-term growth.

Outlook

Supported by insights from recent team research trips to the US and Japan, we remain buoyed about the long-term growth prospects for innovative global leaders in the Sub-Fund, which remain well positioned for multiple new innovation cycles across different sectors in the years ahead. This was reinforced by another strong earnings season, where we have seen evidence of innovative companies proving their resilience and adaptability while strengthening their competitive positioning against a difficult market backdrop. While a degree of macroeconomic and regulatory uncertainty persists, we are reassured to see that fundamentals – rather than sentiment – will ultimately be rewarded in the market.

We look forward to sharing insights from our recent research trips in the coming weeks. With the pace of innovation accelerating, and numerous new structural growth opportunities emerging, we are seeing a lot of exciting new opportunities emerge across the industry landscape, bolstering our confidence that the winners of this new innovation cycle will be different from those of the last.

As always, we will continue to maintain our valuation discipline, taking advantage of further market dislocations to invest in innovative global leaders with strong competitive barriers at attractive prices.

2. Accounting Policies

The principal accounting policies applied in the preparation of these financial statements are set out below.

Basis of Preparation

In preparing the unaudited condensed financial statements for the financial period ended 30 June 2025, the Company has applied Financial Reporting Standard 104 “Interim Financial Reporting” (“FRS 104”) and the Central Bank (Supervision and Enforcement) Act 2013 (Section 48(1)) (Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities) Regulations 2019 (the “Central Bank UCITS Regulations”) and these financial statements comply with these standards. The accounting policies applied are consistent with those of the audited annual financial statements for the financial year ended 31 December 2024, as described in those financial statements.

The Directors have made an assessment of the Company's ability to continue as a going concern and is satisfied that the Company has the resources to continue its business for the foreseeable future. Furthermore, the Directors are not aware of any material uncertainties that may cast significant doubt upon the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. Therefore, the financial statements continue to be prepared on a going concern basis.

2. Accounting Policies (Continued)

Cash Flow Statement

The Company has availed of the exemption available to open-ended investment funds under Section 7 “Statement of Cash Flows” of FRS 102 not to prepare a cash flow statement on the basis that substantially all of the Company’s investments are highly liquid and carried at fair value, and the Company provides a Statement of Changes in Net Assets Attributable to Holders of Redeemable Participating Shares.

Historical Cost Convention

The financial statements have been prepared under the historical cost convention as modified by the revaluation of financial assets and financial liabilities held at fair value through profit or loss.

6. Share Capital

The authorised share capital of the Company is 300,000 redeemable Management Shares of no par value and 500,000,000,000 Shares of no par value. The redeemable participating shares carry voting rights and are entitled to all dividends on the distributing share classes and all capital surplus rights. The rights attached to any class may, whether or not the Company is being wound up, be varied or abrogated with the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths of the issued shares of that class, or with the sanction of a special resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of the class. Every shareholder shall have one vote and every management shareholder shall have one vote in respect of all Management Shares. Management Shares do not entitle the holders to any dividend and on a winding-up entitle the holder to receive the amount paid up thereon but not otherwise to participate in the assets of the Company. The Company may from time to time by ordinary resolution increase its capital by such amount as the resolution shall prescribe. Further information on the rights, preferences and restrictions of each share class is available in the Prospectus.

The subscriber share capital does not form part of Shareholders' funds, and is disclosed in the financial statements by way of this note only. In the opinion of the Directors, this disclosure reflects the nature of the Company's business as an investment fund.

Share classes are either accumulating, distributing, hedged or unhedged and will attract different fee rates of expenses as detailed in Note 9 to the Financial Statements.

Proceeds from shares issued and payments for shares redeemed are reflected in local currency of the share class and include switches and transfers between share classes within the same Sub-Fund.

The movement in the number of redeemable participating shares during the period was as follows:

The specified annual Investment Advisory Fee percentage in respect of Class C11 & H11 is 0.00% per annum of the Net Asset Value of the class. Shareholders in these share classes pay fees (investment advisory fees and performance fees, where applicable) under separate investment management arrangements, as agreed with the Investment Adviser, on a case-by-case basis with the Investment Adviser. These fees are not payable out of the Net Asset Value of the share class.

Performance Fees

The Investment Adviser is entitled to receive a Performance Fee from Liontrust GF European Strategic Equity Fund, Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund, Liontrust GF Pan-European Dynamic Fund and Liontrust GF Global Alpha Long Short Fund in respect of the following shares:

Liontrust GF European Strategic Equity Fund

Performance Fee - Classes A3, A4, B3, C3, C4, C8 and CF.

The performance period of the Sub-Fund is every 12 months ending on the last business day in each calendar year (the "Performance Period").

For Classes A3, A4, B3, C3, C4, C8 and CF, the Performance Fee shall be equal in aggregate to 20% of the amount by which the Net Asset Value of each class exceeds the sum of the hurdle rate and the Adjusted Prior Net Asset Value of the relevant class as at the end of performance period, plus any performance fee realised in relation to the class in respect of redemptions during the performance period. The hurdle rate for all classes is 4% of the Adjusted Prior Net Asset Value of each class per calendar year and will be applied to all classes from the beginning of the relevant Performance Period.

Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund

The performance period of the Sub-Fund is every 12 months ending on the last business day in each calendar year. For all classes, the Performance Fee shall be equal to 10% of the amount, if any, by which the Net Asset Value of the Sub-Fund outperforms the Sub-Fund's benchmark index, the MSCI Europe Small Cap Net Total Return Index.

Further details of the performance fee applicable to the Sub-Funds is set out in the Prospectus.

The Investment Adviser is not entitled to receive a Performance Fee on any other Sub-Funds.

Liontrust GF Global Alpha Long Short Fund

Performance Fee - Classes A1, A2, A5, A8, B1, B8 and C8.

No performance fee is payable in respect of the Class I1 Shares, which will be the subject of separate investment management arrangements between the investor and the Investment Adviser on a case-by-case basis. The Performance Fee will accrue on each Valuation Point and the accrual will be reflected in the Net Asset Value of each Class. The Performance Fee crystallises and becomes payable to the Investment Adviser on the last Dealing Day in each Performance Period, or if the relevant Share Class is terminated before the end of a Performance Period, the Dealing Day on which the final redemption of Shares takes place. Further details of the performance fee applicable to the Sub-Funds is set out in the Prospectus.

The Distributors

Liontrust Fund Partners LLP and Liontrust Europe S.A., the Distributors, are responsible for the day to day distribution and marketing activities for each Sub-Fund for which it is the Distributor. The fees of the Distributors are paid out of the Investment Adviser's own fees.

Management, Administration and Depositary Fees

The fees of the Manager, the Administrator and the Depositary are paid by the Investment Adviser as part of the fixed operating fee arrangement described in Note 15.

Establishment Expenses

Establishment expenses are included in the fixed operating fee arrangement described in Note 15.

ISDA Counterparties

Liontrust GF European Strategic Equity Fund has appointed Goldman Sachs International, Morgan Stanley and UBS AG as counterparties under International Swaps and Derivatives Association ("ISDA") agreements and fees payable under the ISDA agreements are paid out of the assets of the Sub-Fund at normal commercial rates.

Liontrust GF Strategic Bond Fund, Liontrust GF High Yield Bond Fund and Liontrust GF Global Short Dated Corporate Bond Fund have appointed Goldman Sachs International and UBS AG as counterparties under ISDA agreements and fees payable under these ISDA agreements are paid out of the assets of the Sub-Funds at normal commercial rates.

10. Taxation

Under current law and practice the Company qualifies as an investment undertaking as defined in Section 739B of the Taxes Consolidation Act, 1997 as amended (the "TCA"). On that basis it is not chargeable to Irish Tax on its income or gains.

However, Irish tax may arise on the occurrence of a "chargeable event". A chargeable event includes any distribution payments to shareholders or any encashment, redemption, transfer or cancellation of shares and any deemed disposal of shares for Irish tax purposes arising as a result of holding shares in the Company for a period of eight years or more.

No Irish tax will arise in respect of chargeable events in respect of a shareholder who is an Exempt Irish Investor (as defined in Section 739D of the TCA) or who is neither Irish resident nor ordinarily resident in Ireland for tax purposes at the time of the chargeable event, provided, in each case, that an appropriate valid declaration in accordance with Schedule 2B of the TCA is held by the Company or where the Company has been authorised by Irish Revenue to make gross payments in absence of appropriate declarations.

Distributions, interest and capital gains (if any) received on investments made by the Company may be subject to withholding taxes imposed by the country of origin and such taxes may not be recoverable by the Company or its shareholders.

12. Financial Derivative Instruments and Efficient Portfolio Management

The Company may, on behalf of each Sub-Fund, employ financial derivative instruments, including currency hedging, for investment or efficient portfolio management subject to the conditions and within the limits laid down by the Central Bank. During the financial period, the Sub-Funds used futures, forward foreign exchange contracts, contracts for difference and swaps as allowed under the Prospectus. As at the financial period end, there were a number of open derivatives contracts, which are disclosed in the respective Sub-Funds' Portfolio Statements. There was no collateral received for any financial derivative instruments for the financial period ended 30 June 2025 and the financial year ended 31 December 2024. Please refer to Note 4 to the Financial Statements and the respective Sub-Funds' Portfolio Statements for further details on cash and securities collateral pledged, respectively.

Gain and losses realised during the current and prior financial periods, together with the transaction costs incurred, are accounted for in the Statement of Comprehensive Income under net fair value gain/(loss) on financial assets and liabilities at fair value through profit or loss.

13. Connected Persons

Regulation 43(1) of the Central Bank UCITS Regulations provides that any transaction carried out with a UCITS by a management company or depositary to the UCITS, the delegates or sub-delegates of the management company or depositary, and any associated or group of such a management company, depositary, delegate or sub-delegate ("connected persons") must be carried out as if negotiated at arm's length. Transactions must be in the best interests of the shareholders.

The Board of Directors are satisfied that there are arrangements (evidenced by written procedures) in place, to ensure that these obligations are applied to all transactions with connected persons, and are also satisfied that transactions with connected persons entered into during the financial period complied with them.

15. Fixed Operating Fee

The Investment Adviser has implemented a fixed operating fee on the Sub-Funds, which includes inter alia, the fees and expenses of the Administrator, Depository, sub-custodial fees and transaction charges, Directors and Auditors fees and expenses, and fees paid to the Investment Adviser for administrative and related expenses. The fixed operating fee is payable out of the Net Asset Value of each Sub-Fund attributable to each share class at the annual percentage rate of the Net Asset Value of each Sub-Fund shown in the table below.

For the avoidance of doubt, the fixed operating fees as set out below apply to a Sub-Fund when the assets of the Sub-Fund do not exceed £500 million. Discounts may apply for Sub-Funds with assets that exceed £500 million.

Funds	Fixed Operating Fee
Liontrust GF European Strategic Equity Fund	0.21%
Liontrust GF Special Situations Fund ¹	0.17%

Liontrust GF Global Technology Fund	0.12%
Liontrust GF Global Dividend Fund	0.12%
Liontrust GF Global Innovation Fund	0.12%
	0.12%

¹Fixed operating fee per annum for Classes C6 and C7 is 0.075%.

²Fixed operating fee per annum for Classes A10, B10 and C10 is 0.0625%.

The fixed operating fee shall accrue daily based on the prior day Net Asset Value of each share class and the fixed operating fee accrued during a calendar month shall be paid to the Investment Adviser out of the assets of each Sub-Fund on or as soon as is practicable after the last business day of that calendar month. The fixed operating fee will be calculated taking account of any discount to be applied based on the Net Asset Value of the Sub-Fund on the last business day of the previous month. In the event that the assets of a Sub-Fund exceed £500 million, in order to pass on any savings which may be made through economies of scale, discounts will be applied to the fixed operating fee of all share classes of the Sub-Fund on a sliding scale basis.

Notes to the Financial Statements

15. Fixed Operating Fee (Continued)

Where an applicable threshold level of Net Asset Value is achieved by a Sub-Fund on the last business day of any month, the relevant discount will apply to the Sub-Fund in relation to the following month. The fixed operating fee is not currently subject to VAT, but in the event of value added tax (or any equivalent tax) being imposed this may be levied against the property of the Sub-Fund.

16. Disclosure of Cross Investments by Sub-Funds within the Company

Effective 9 July 2025, Class C11 Accumulating Sterling (Hedged) shares launched on Liontrust GF Global Short Dated Corporate Bond Fund and on Liontrust GF Global Short Dated Corporate Bond Fund.

There have been no other events subsequent to the financial period end which, in the opinion of the Directors of the Company, may have a material impact on the financial statements for the financial period ended 30 June 2025.

Notes to the Financial Statements

19. Commitments and Contingent Liabilities

A number of counterparties used by the Sub-Funds hold a number of charges granting a priority security interest in relation to collateral and principal broker securities relating to the relevant Sub-Fund's account.

There were no significant commitments or contingent liabilities as at 30 June 2025 and 30 June 2025.

20. Approval of Financial Statements

The Financial Statements were approved by the Board of Directors on 21 August 2025.

Unaudited Schedule of Significant Portfolio Movements
For the six months ended 30 June 2025

In accordance with the Central Bank UCITS Regulations, a statement of the largest changes in the composition of the Portfolio Statements during the reporting period is provided to ensure that shareholders can identify changes in the investments held by the Sub-Funds.

The below represents aggregate purchases of a security exceeding 1 per cent of the total value of purchases for the financial period or aggregate disposals greater than 1 per cent of the total value of sales. If there were fewer than 20 purchases/sales that exceed 1 per cent during the financial period, the largest 20 purchases/sales are disclosed.

Soft Commissions

The Investment Adviser has a research policy governing how research used in the investment management of the Sub-Funds is sourced and paid for. All research is purchased directly by the Investment Adviser from its own resources and will not be recharged to the Sub-Funds. No payments for research are made out of commission paid to brokers on transaction payments (i.e. soft commission). The Investment Adviser may accept minor non-monetary benefits from those brokers which enhance the quality of its services and which do not prevent it from acting in the best interests of its clients and are specifically permitted under the relevant regulations. During the financial period, the Investment Adviser has executed trades with brokers from whom it receives research under the separate research agreements and these trades have been on an execution only basis with agreed execution only commission rates. The Investment Adviser has satisfied itself that it obtains best execution on behalf of the Sub-Funds and the brokerage rates are in line with customary institutional execution only brokerage rates.

UK Reporting Status

A number of share classes in the Sub-Funds have been accepted as reporting funds by the United Kingdom Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs ("UK HMRC") with the exception of Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund. A number of share classes in each Sub-Fund report annually to the UK HMRC.
